

OSU Report Shows Value of Ranches, Livestock Numbers Dropping in State

Oregon farms and ranches had a lower total value and fewer numbers of all livestock, except beef cattle and turkeys, as 1965 started, reports Mrs. Elvera Horrell, Oregon State university extension agricultural economist.

Reviewing the annual livestock and poultry inventory made by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Mrs. Horrell noted that the inventory value of livestock on Oregon farms at the start of the year was $185 million, down 12 percent from Jan. 1, 1964.

However, she added, values per head were higher for all types of livestock except cattle. In terms of numbers, only beef cattle and turkeys topped a year ago, with fewer milk cows, hogs, sheep and chickens counted.

Dairy Cows at Low Level

A record number of beef cows, 673,000 head, was recorded in the state, while milk cows and heifers, two years and older, are at the lowest level since 1908.

Total cattle numbers in Oregon now stand at 1,614,000 head, up four percent from last year and the highest of record. The increase in beef numbers more than offset the decline in milk cows which now number 150,000, a decrease of 6,000 head from the 1964 figure, Mrs. Horrell said.

Sheep and lambs, at 693,000 head, were down six percent from last year and the lowest since Jan. 1, 1951. Hogs numbered only 110,000, a drop of 19 percent for the year and the second lowest total since records were started in 1867.

Turkey Population Increases

Chickens declined for the eighth consecutive year, she reported. Chicken numbers were down three percent to 2,915,000. On the other hand, Jan. 1 found 262,000 turkeys on Oregon farms, some two percent more than a year ago.

Generally, national trends were about the same as those in Oregon, Mrs. Horrell pointed out, with the exception of chicken numbers. The inventory value of all livestock on the nation's farms and ranches was down nine percent.

As 1965 started, Oregon ranked eighth among the 50 states in the number of turkeys on farms, 11th in sheep and lamb numbers, 20th in beef cows, 32nd in milk cows, 33rd in chickens and 35th in hog numbers.

Clackamas Leads Counties

Clackamas county led the state in value of all livestock and livestock products sold from farms in 1963, according to figures just released by the OSU Cooperative Extension service and U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Next in line were Malheur, Umatilla, Klamath and Marion, each with sales amounting to more than $10 million that year.

Klamath county led the state in sales of cattle and calves, while Douglas county was first in sheep and lamb sales. Marion county was tops in hog sales and Tillamook county was first in farm sales of milk and cream. Clackamas was high in poultry and poultry products.
