

FFA Chapters Hold State Meeting At Ontario; Awards Banquet Slated

Oregon's Future Farmers of America are holding their 37th annual three-day convention at Ontario high school plant. This year's convention activities began yesterday, with registration and final state parliamentary procedure contests between teams from Baker, Gervais, Harrisburg, Wy'east and West Linn schools. Today's activities include a beef barbecue, a fornia, Union Pacific Railroad and the H. H. Gibson Memorial.

Scholarship Test Scheduled

The American Institute of Co-operation scholarship test will be given to 20 finalists from FFA chapters throughout the state by representatives of the Agriculture Cooperative council of Oregon. Five scholarships will be awarded, each for an expense-paid trip to the American Institute of Co-operation to be held in August at Columbia, Mo.

The convention is being attended by representatives from each of Oregon's 92 FFA chapters. In addition, more than 900 Oregon Future Farmers, vocational agriculture instructors, friends and guests are attending the convention sessions.

State FFA officers presiding over the convention are Jim Matheny, Central-Linn, president; Chuck Sparks, Hillsboro, vice president; Stan Bunn, Dayton, secretary; Danny Hill, Albany, treasurer; Melvin Olsen, St. Helens, reporter; and Roger Martin, Illinois Valley, sentinel.

Local arrangements for this 37th annual convention were made by the Ontario unit and other FFA chapters in the Snake River district.

Cassi, Jessi Again Offered Students For Summer Study

Two-week summer programs in the sciences, engineering and communication arts are open to 10th, 11th and 12th grade college-bound high school students at several colleges and universities throughout the United States. The institutes are sponsored by Scientists of Tomorrow, a Portland, Ore., non-profit organization.

The Junior Engineers' and Scientists' Summer Institute, or JESSI, is an exploration in the sciences and engineering for orientation and guidance purposes. CASSI (Communications Arts and Science Summer Institute) explores the theories, science, art and techniques of communication, with self-improvement as its prime objective.

In striving for this objective, CASSI introduces the student to the liberal arts studies. Both institutes offer career information in their respective areas. Members of the regular staffs of the host institutions serve on the JESSI and CASSI faculties.

Important by-products of the JESSI and CASSI experience are
