Cow Lakes Yield Excellent Catches Of Rainbow Trout

Evidently the word is out that Cow Lakes, located near the Idaho border in the Jordan Valley country, is loaded with rainbow trout, with the slab-sided fish running to good size.

Larry Bisbee, game commission fishery biologist at Burns, reports that since Cow Lake is beginning to produce excellent catches. Of 30 anglers checked recently, the catch rate was running almost six fish per angler. Of paramount interest is the size, as most rainbows are running from 10 to 14 inches in length with good numbers exceeding this mark and ranging up to 18 inches. Lesser numbers of rainbows caught ranged in the 8- to 10-inch class.

This is the lake that only two years ago supported nothing but suckers, chubs and several other miscellaneous undesirable species. Last summer the game commission chemically treated both upper and lower Cow Lakes and restocked them last fall with fingerling rainbows. Both lakes are rich in food production and by midwinter the young rainbows were pushing the 10- to 12-inch mark.

The catch this spring attests to the success of the rehabilitation project. If the trout continue to grow, anglers should take some weighty rainbows before the summer is over.

New Books Listed At County Library

"Wild Heritage" by Sally Carrighar. A popular survey on animal behavior in relation to human behavior.

"Abyss" by C. P. Idyll. A fascinating exposition on the mysteries of the ocean depths.

"A Ship Called Hope" by William B. Walsh. The story of the American hospital ship and its team of doctors and nurses that have brought help to so many all over the world.

"Dearest Child" edited by Roger Fulford. Letters between Queen Victoria and the Princess Royal.

"The Culture Consumers" by Alvin Toffler. A study of the boom in culture in affluent America today.

"Fire-Bell in the Night" by Oscar Handlin. Challenging reminder of the real objectives in the search for civil rights.

"O Strange New World" by Howard Mumford Jones. A study of the emerging images of the New World as held by both Americans and Europeans.

"Human Behavior" by Bernard Berelson. A comprehensive survey of scientific findings.

"The Shoshonis" by Virginia Cole Trenholm. A history of the Shoshoni Indians from Pre-Columbian days to contemporary times.

"Weather" by Philip D. Thompson. This book traces the basic circulation of heat and winds from equator to poles and explains the basic phenomena of weather.

"A Museum of Early American Tools" by Eric Sloane. The axes and augers and adzes that converted bark-covered logs into early wooden homes and barns are included, along with the sleds, barrows and other farm implements made of wood.

"The Corrida at San Feliu" by Paul Scott. A subtle fictional interpretation of a novelist's disillusioned marriage.

Auto Speeding Biggest Cause Of Road Deaths

With the long Memorial Day weekend nearing, drivers of automobiles are urged to use common sense behind-the-wheel. Statistics indicate that speed too fast for conditions is the single most lethal mistake a driver can make.

The level in Oregon's highway blood bath is rising at a pace far outstripping last year's record-setting effort.

According to the Oregon Department of Motor Vehicles, deaths at the end of April totaled 204, a 31 percent increase over the same period a year ago. If this trend continues, the agency said, deaths for the year will exceed 750.

The Traffic Safety and Education division noted that this has taken place with the highest death-producing six months yet to come.

April's death toll, which included 21 in one weekend, also set a new record with 71 people killed in traffic. The worst previous April on record was in 1961 when 42 people were killed in traffic.

Nyssa Births . . .

May 13—To Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Lopez of Nyssa, a 9-pound, 5-ounce boy, Tony.
 May 15—To Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Harris of Vale, a 10-pound, 4-ounce boy, David Leslie.
 May 16—To Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Washman of Nyssa, a 7-pound, 10-ounce girl, Tammy Lynn.
 May 17—To the Rev. and Mrs. Gary Shoemaker of Homedale, a 9-pound, 5-ounce boy, Kevin Lee.
 May 19—To Mr. and Mrs. Reader Hale of Vale, a girl.

These statistics should speak for themselves," Vern L. Hill, director of the department said. "If anyone ever doubted the seriousness of the traffic accident problem in this state, the toll this year should prove the issue."

Last year, 37 percent of the driver errors in fatal crashes involved speed in one form or another.
