

Books on Dog Care and History Added For Circulation at Malheur Library

New books going into circulation Saturday, Aug. 21, at Malheur county library include the following.

"Dogs and Dog Care" by Ulrich Klever. History and characteristics of nearly 200 breeds.

"The World of Dogs" by Josephine Z. Rine. An illustrated history of man's best friend, from prehistoric tree climber to today's trusted companion.

"Your Puppy and How to Train Him" by H. V. Beamish. The reader is taken step by step from selecting his puppy, through its first days of orientation, to the final stages of its training.

"The Treasury of the Automobiles" by Ralph Stein. A book illustrated with many colored pictures that gives the history of the automobile and automobile racing.

"The Kimono Mind" by Bernard Rudofsky. The uniqueness of the Japanese inn, the ambiguity of the language, domestic architecture, food and dress are some of the topics that claim the author's attention.

"3 Lives for Mississippi" by William Bradford Huie. The author, sent to Mississippi by the New York Herald Tribune to investigate the June 1964 murders of the three civil rights workers, gives a resume of the case and background details of the victims.

"The Last Grand Duchess" by Ian Vorres. An account of the tragic life of the sister of the last Czar of Russia.

"The Johnson Treatment" by Jack Bell. How Lyndon B. Johnson took over the presidency and made it his own.

"The Wire That Fenced the West" by Henry D. McCallum. A record of the development and historical contributions of barbed-wire fencing.

"Intern" by Doctor X. The week-by-week diary of a young doctor during his year of hospital internship.

SAGERS HOST DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Sager entertained with Sunday dinner for Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Spitz and family, Mrs. Beth Ellis and Karen. The dinner honored Lois Spitz and Harlan Sager on their birthday anniversaries.

GUESTS FROM CALIFORNIA

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Zittercob and daughters of Palm Beach, Calif., were weekend guests of his nephew and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Zittercob and Tommy. They also visited other relatives and friends.

IT'S YOUR LAW

By Oregon State Bar

Idea Men Sometimes Unprotected by Law

Some ideas pay off big, and so you don't want them pirated.

Suppose your idea pays off. Can you protect it from someone else using it? Of course if any embodiment of your idea is patentable, you will have protection.

But what if it isn't? Can you get legal protection for your idea?

Not as a rule: One writer thought up a TV series about the highway patrol. He wrote some scripts for it and talked his idea over in "confidence" with a highway patrol employee. He wanted to look into the patrol's files for material.

Instead of helping the author, the employee took the idea to a TV producer who in return hired him as "consultant." Result: A TV show using the writer's idea.

The writer sued. The California court said he had no "property right" in the idea of using government files for a TV show. It was old stuff. His imparting the idea in "confidence" did not protect the idea.

The original idea man might have protected himself in advance by a contract. Even an oral contract would have given him some protection.

Of course you might patent the tangible development of an "idea." As a rule, the idea man won't be protected until he ties his idea down to something tangible which can be patented or copyrighted or protected against breach of confidence.

Thus now and then, the idea man gets paid. One man made and turned over a new folding chair to a manufacturer. The manufacturer copied features of it, but paid nothing. He patented the chair himself.

The court said the manufacturer had "unjustly enriched"

The Old Timer

By Mrs. Waldo Smalley

Mr. and Mrs. Buford Standerfer of Burley were recent weekend guests of their son, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Standerfer and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Fritts of Caldwell were Aug. 8 visitors in the C. L. Fritts home.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Boston returned Sunday, Aug. 8, from a trip to the coast. They visited with Don Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Orley Smith in Seattle; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Rogers in Tacoma, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. Dick Harris and family in Springfield, Ore.

Mrs. Grover Findley of Madras, Ore., arrived recently with Roger Norland to visit her mother, Mrs. Martha Norland. Her husband, Grover Findley, arrived Aug. 6 and the family visited until Tuesday with Mrs. Norland and Findley's relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Norland of Caldwell were recent Saturday evening visitors in the home of Mrs. Martha Norland.

William and Betty Sloane and four children left Sunday, Aug. 8, for their home in Buffalo, N.Y., after visiting for two weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Correll. During their visit, the two families traveled to Washington state where they visited the James Corrells at Bainbridge, Col. Robert Hartnett and were overnight guests of the Gordon Corrells at Marysville.

They also visited the Jack Reeds at Parma and picnicked with the Cleo Whittons in Boise. Mr. and Mrs. Sloane attended a 1941 class reunion held on the evening of Aug. 7 at the McGarvin restaurant in Caldwell.

Among visitors in the Correll home during the Sloane family's stay were Sam Smyer, Mr. and Mrs. Masa Kora and children, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Miller and son of Newport, Ore. Mrs. Miller will be remembered as Mildred Whisler.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.

Other courts have said there is a breach of confidence; and, that the idea was disclosed only on the understanding that payment would be made for its use. If so, payment must be made for the idea.

But even so, the idea must be tied down to something concrete. If the idea becomes a "trade secret," a patent or copyright will afford protection. These have become "property." Ideas alone are hard to classify as "property."

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved.)

himself and should pay royalties for using the ideas.