THREE KEYS to CANCER CONTROL

RESEARCH

Dr. William S. Adams, as professor of medicine at the U.C.L.A. School of Medicine, treats leukemia patients. As a researcher, he is trying to learn ways in which the chemical machinery of leukemia patients has gone wrong. Reason: to explore new leads for leukemia control.

EDUCATION

Five years ago Mrs. Mae Edwards, of Pinellas County, Fla., thought up Save-a-Life parties. Neighbors are invited for coffee; early cancer detection is discussed; pamphlets are given out; guests are urged to give similar parties. In Pinellas County alone seven early cancers were discovered as a result of 150 Save-a-Life parties. Idea has caught on all over the U.S.

SERVICE

Mrs. Marjorie Shields, a volunteer for the ACS Illinois Division Transportation Corps, has transported over 1,000 cancer patients to and from Cook County Hospital during the past four years. Mother of eight, she takes her youngest with her on duty day.
