IT'S YOUR LAW

By Oregon State Bar

Bankruptcy

In bygone days when a man got himself hopelessly in debt, the courts would jail him until he paid. Or, as in our colonial days, a man became an "indentured" servant and would be sent to America to work off his debt.

Neither jail nor servitude proved practical. A man in jail could not earn anything to pay his debts. It was drastic—something like the Siberian salt mines—to send a man to serve for years across the seas.

Through hard luck, illness, easy credit, impulse buying or shifts in world affairs, men and women may find themselves hopelessly in debt.

Our bankruptcy laws aim to permit an honest but unlucky or weak debtor to turn over a new leaf. They allow him to file a voluntary petition in bankruptcy.

He accounts for all of his property and turns it over for his creditors' benefit. The court sets up machinery to get as much of their money back as possible.

The court then adjudges the man a bankrupt. This means, with some exceptions, that the court will discharge him of his debts. Any income he gets after that time cannot be reached in court to pay his old debts.

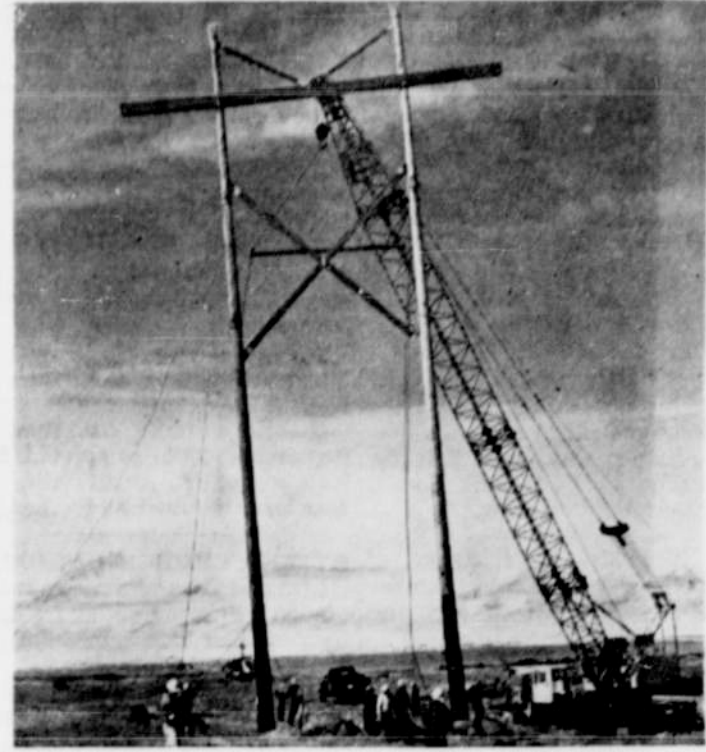

Debtors may try to gain in ways not intended by the bankruptcy laws. If so, creditors may object. Besides, the courts may deal drastically with such debtors under our criminal laws.

Under the law a man may hold certain things exempt from his creditors—usually his home and also furniture, clothing, the family car and the tools of his trade.

(Oregon lawyers offer this column as a public service. No person should apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is completely advised of the facts involved. Even a slight variance in fact may change the application of the law.)

SUNDAY DINNER GUESTS

Mr. and Mrs. John Peine and family were recent Sunday dinner guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schilling and sons.

CONSTRUCTION OF STILL ANOTHER ADDITION to Idaho Power company's network of 230,000-volt "backbone" transmission lines is hitting a steady pace across the 106 miles between Boise and the Midpoint substation near Jerome, the utility reports. Typical of activity on the $3.5 million project is this scene showing company crew and crane teaming to erect pre-assembled tower, 75 feet high and weighing some four tons, on the desert southwest of Shoshone. New heavy-duty line, part of the utility's $49 million construction program for 1966, will provide additional means of delivering electricity from Hells Canyon to fast-growing industrial and irrigation-pumping loads in Magic Valley and eastern Idaho. It will be Idaho Power's third line equipped with "bundled," or paired, conductors—a company-pioneered technique designed to carry 40 percent more electricity than conventional conductors. Construction crews, totaling about 100 men at project's peak, will erect more than 700 wood and steel towers and string nearly 640 miles of conductor to complete new line this year. Helping to speed the work by carrying men between construction sites is helicopter seen in background.

Mrs. M. Moore Takes Trip Into Mexico While Visiting Children in California

NEWELL HEIGHTS—Mrs. Marie Moore arrived home March 25 after spending three months in California with a son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Jacobson and family at Chester; and her son, Hank Moore at Indio.

Mrs. Moore and her son were guests one day of the Mexicali of Mexico Jaycees and their wives. They attended a coffee hour at the Hilton hotel and were then taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gustavo Salazar.

The hostess and her sister took Mrs. Moore on a sightseeing tour and upon returning, joined 24 JC's and their wives for a genuine Mexican dinner.

Among those present, only two men and two women could speak English.

Receive Gifts From Jaycees

Mrs. Moore was presented with a three-piece set of embroidery work and Hank received a cigarette lighter bearing the JCI Senatorship insignia. He earned the honors in 1965, which entitles him to a life membership in the Junior Chamber of Commerce (USA) and in the JC International organization.

Mrs. Moore reports that while spending a few hours in Mexico she saw quite a contrast in homes. There were large apartment buildings and residences with beautifully landscaped lawns, well-kept middle-class homes, as well as one- or two-room dwellings built from anything available including cardboard, boxes or tin.

Your PCA Credit Helps You Buy Labor-Saving Machinery

Farmers and stockmen use PCA loans to finance machinery that helps to increase production and cut costs.

PCA—Production Credit Association—is a non-profit organization owned and operated by farmers and stockmen to provide dependable, low cost credit for farmers and stockmen. Here's how their loans work:

You have up to 7 years to repay capital improvement loans. Investments then pay for themselves with increased profits.

Operating funds are budgeted for an entire year, and you have money any time you need it.

Loan costs are lowest because you pay interest only on the money you actually use, and only for the time you use it.

Your payments are credited first to principal, reducing the balance subject to interest, and lowering your interest costs.

To help you learn about PCA financing, let us give you a free booklet, "Budgeting for Profit." No obligation.
