C. Wyckoff Participates in Program At U of O to Assist Troubled Youths

Chris Wyckoff, a sophomore at the University of Oregon, is one of many university men conducting a special guidance program to assist troubled young boys in the Eugene area.

The program is being conducted by YMCA officials who issued a call for assistance in the fall of 1965, stating that special qualifications were in demand.

After application forms were submitted, each U of O student was interviewed as to emotional maturity, ability to maintain acceptable academic standing throughout the year and a commitment to continue the program until the end of the school term in June.

Most of the little brothers are boys who do not have a father to provide a strong masculine image. Their big brothers attempt to provide this male companionship.

Has Fourth Grade Student

Chris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Wyckoff of Nyssa, has Steve Chadwick, a fourth grade student, for whom he is responsible.

The lad has a mother, but no father, and comes from a large family. Chris sees him at least twice a week. He sometimes visits him in his home on the opposite side of Eugene from where the university is located.

On other occasions Steve is invited to the student's room where the two of them work with modeling clay or take on other projects of interest to the little brother.

They sometimes play ball, take bicycle rides, attend basketball games or go to the movies.

Chris lets Steve select the activity for each particular get-together, and at the same time tries to guide his thinking.

The student's mother, June Marie Wyckoff, reports that Chris says he is able to see a big change in the lad—more and more he seems to appreciate their friendship. Mrs. Wyckoff also states that the program has been good for her son, giving him a sense of responsibility and a companionship he should never forget.

Why fly over the scenery?

Travel right through it!

Sure you're in a hurry. But once in a while, on that business trip, why not give yourself a break? Why not take the train?

You remember trains. They take you from here to there on the ground—down where the scenery is. You go right through it... slow enough so you can see it, but fast enough so you arrive wherever you're going almost before you want to.

And up in a Union Pacific Domeliner—ah what a view!

That's because the Dome cars were built just for that purpose—to see the scenery. May we remind you of some other pleasures of train travel? How about the convenience of a private room... a dining car with a variety of freshly-prepared foods—a lounge car—great for reading, relaxing or winning friends.

Yes, train travel is great—a vacation all the way! Let us tell you more. Call us or your favorite travel agent.
