LETTER To the Editor

1299 Franklin
 Lebanon, Ore.
 May 21, 1966

Dear Ted and Arlene:

It is again nearing Strawberry Festival time in Lebanon. The dates are June 9, 10 and 11, and we would like to extend a welcome to all our Nyssa friends and anyone interested in having fun.

We have the world's largest strawberry shortcake and following the grand parade June 11, everyone will enjoy eating it with lots of ice cream piled on top.

There are also other fun events—flower shows, horse shows, a carnival for the kiddies and all kinds of entertainment.

Congratulations are in order on the wonderful improvements made recently in Nyssa. You see, we are very proud of our hometown and have spent 2½ years educating people in these parts as to the whereabouts of Nyssa.

We don't need much encouragement to expound on the beauty of Treasure Valley. Most people now know about Eastern Oregon and the ones who don't, soon learn.

We know you hated to lose the Clarence Clapp family and the John Milbraths, but we love having them near. There's just no one like someone from home.

Do hope to see some of our Nyssa friends at our festival. If not, I'm sure many will be making trips right through Lebanon enroute to the coast and we'll love having them visit us.

Sincerely,
 THELMA and KEN
 TOOMB

The award-winning youth is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Riggs of Nyssa.

IT'S YOUR LAW

By Oregon State Bar

'Finders, Keepers'

Few people realize that a dirty-faced urchin is responsible for the main principles behind our law governing the ownership of lost articles.

Percy Armory was a chimney-sweep's helper who lived in London shortly before the birth of our own George Washington. He found a diamond ring in the street one day.

Percy took the ring to a goldsmith's shop to find out what it was. The goldsmith's apprentice, under the pretense of weighing it, stole the diamond from its setting. When he told Percy the ring was of very little value, Percy demanded return of the jewel as well as its setting. The goldsmith and the apprentice refused to give back his treasure.

But Percy was not the kind to be badgered about. He sought the services of a lawyer to sue for recovery of the ring and its jewel set. The results of his suit have immortalized Percy's name in the common law.

The goldsmith and apprentice claimed that since Percy had found the ring, he had no better right to it than they did. The court ordered the diamond returned "because the finder of a lost article has the right to hold it against the whole world except the true owner." This principle established by Percy's case remains as effective today as it was over two centuries ago.

However, as far as the owner is concerned, the finder of lost goods is merely regarded as a depository, holding the goods for the true owner.

The courts draw a distinction between "misaid" and "lost property." Lost property is property which the owner casually and thoughtlessly parts with, like the dropping of a wallet in the hurry to get on a bus. Misaid property, on the other hand, is property which the owner has purposely laid down and then forgotten, leaving it where placed.

An example of this would be a handbag placed on a shop counter while a customer examines merchandise. A finder must leave misaid articles with the proprietor of the place where found.

FARM BUREAU FURROW

By GEORGE DEWEY
 Executive Secretary

Campbell Co. Won't Discuss Contracts

The Campbell Soup company has refused to meet with processing tomato growers from Illinois, Ohio and New Jersey to discuss processing tomato production contracts.

The growers from these three states are members of the American Agricultural Marketing association, an affiliate of the American Farm Bureau federation.

There are a growing number of the nation's farmers who believe the only way to receive parity for their produce is to join together in just such a program as this. This move of the AAMA is the first step in uniting growers of a particular crop, and it will be interesting to see the outcome, not only this year but in the years ahead.

Wage Bill Unacceptable
 The sub-committee of the House Welfare and Education committee has amended the agricultural piece-rate provisions of the proposed minimum wage law (HR 13712).

The amendments, however, would only create havoc on the farms of Oregon. For example, the new proposal would require all farmers to be covered by minimum wage legislation, if during

Oregon State University Work-Study Program Gets $1 Million Allocation

An allocation of $1,015,259 has been received by Oregon State university to use next year in its Work-Study program—a financial aid program to help needy students complete their education.

The federally-sponsored program provides part-time work for students during the school year and full-time work during the summer months.

About 400 students are employed on campus this term in a wide variety of jobs, President James H. Jensen reported. With the new allocation, approximately 1,000 summer jobs will be available on campus and throughout the state with 83 co-operating cities and county agencies.

All students participating in the program must be making satisfactory progress toward graduation.

Government Pays 90%

Under the program, the federal government (Department of Health, Education and Welfare) pays 90 percent of the student wages. The university departments and cooperating agencies pay the other 10 percent, plus employer costs.

Dennis L. Crawford is administrator of the Work-Study program at OSU.

June high school graduates who plan to enroll at Oregon State this fall will be eligible for the summer Work-Study program, he said, provided they qualify on the basis of need.

Work in Home Communities

By developing job arrangements with city and county groups throughout the state, students may have work in their home communities during the summer, Crawford explained.

The Work-Study jobs do not take the place of regular staff positions, he continued. They are jobs that permit added services and that let the university carry on some functions that would not be possible under regular budgets.

OSU's Work-Study allocation for the period from July 1, 1965, to June 30, 1966, was $504,000. About 600 different students benefited from the work program. Nearly all who applied and qualified have been aided, Crawford noted.

Program, Graduation Rites Planned Tonight for 28 Kindergarten Students

Students of Mrs. Dorothea Mitchell's kindergarten class will climax their school year with a program for parents and friends at 8 o'clock tonight (Thursday) in the cultural hall at the LDS stake center.

The young children will present a program of songs, rhythms, baton twirling, marching, recitations and rhythm band, which will be followed with a traditional cap and gown graduation ceremony with the processional march being played by Dean Sappe.

Musical Numbers Planned

Prelude music will be presented by Dellas Frederiksen and guest artist will be Dee Farr, young pianist from Adrian.

The five-year-old students have been gathering information, experimenting and taking many field trips during this school year. On May 2 the children took a train trip to Boise where they traveled by Ann Morrison park, fed the ducks and visited the zoo before returning home.

Last week they motored to the Ontario airport to see an airliner arrive and depart. They also visited a pet shop and played at the Ontario park.

They visited Albertson's "Haven" on the Snake river private island, toured the fire station, took a long farm hike which ended at Wilton Jackson's home to see the real black bear that Jackson killed this year in Alaska.

The small fry have made stew, jello, cookies, popcorn and experimented with many other things. Their latest creation was making real Maracas out of light bulbs with paper mache and painting them. They will perform with them on their program.

Mrs. Bowers Assists

Mrs. Janice Bowers has assisted Mrs. Mitchell this year in her kindergarten.

Pupils participating in activities this year are Dale Berrett, Barbie Bowers, Troy Calhoun, Lori Cleaver, Steve DeMinck, Paul Fife, Jamie Garner, Barbara Jean Haney, Cindy Kessler, Wayne Lattin, Toqua Linegar, Brent Maggard, Colleen McGinley, Lane Montgomery.
