BURGLARY ATTEMPT FAILS AT MICHAEL'S PHARMACY

Nyssa police officers report that an attempt to break open the front door of Michael's Pharmacy failed during the Fourth of July weekend. Chief F. E. Petrie stated that it appeared the burglars were frightened off before the job was completed.

It was also believed that the night deposit box at the First National bank had been tampered with as a key had been broken off in the lock. Petrie stated that a local business man later reported to banking officials that he had broken his key while trying to deposit his receipts at the close of Saturday business hours.

FARM BUREAU FURROW

By HOWARD FUJIL Director Commodities and Farm Labor

Is Every Laborer Worthy of His Hire?

Proponents of social and minimum wage legislation say that every worker must be guaranteed a minimum hourly earning. This thinking is contrary to the adage that each person should be rewarded according to his contribution to society. Qualifications and productivity are still essential factors in determining remuneration if private enterprise is important to our society.

Mechanization has enabled many industries and certain agricultural operations to increase productivity and efficiency. Automation has eliminated the need for many machine operators. Larger and more powerful equipment has decreased agricultural manpower needs.

One of the remaining "last frontiers" requiring large numbers of hand labor is the harvest of numerous horticultural crops that have not been mechanized. As the historical "fruit tramps" disappear from the American scene, farmers have hired students, retired people and unemployed from other industries to supplement the rapidly diminishing number of professional farm workers.

Workers are paid on a piece-rate basis and individual earnings are related to productivity. Every possible worker must be employed in an attempt to save the crops, regardless of qualification or productivity. Average piece-rate earnings generally exceed hourly agricultural wages.

The Oregon Farm Bureau and other agricultural organizations have asked the Senate labor committee to amend the House-passed minimum wage bill to authorize compliance if the average earnings of piece-rate workers 18 to 65 years of age subject to minimum wages exceed the required minimum.

Such an amendment would enable farmers to employ the relatively small percentage of the agricultural work force who cannot produce enough to justify payment of the minimum wage.

This request supplements the amendment by Rep. Edith Green exempting local seasonal piece-rate workers who commute daily from their permanent residence and work fewer than 13 weeks a year in agriculture.

It would solve problems involving students housed on farms, migrant children, elderly people and handicapped workers who could not qualify for exemption because they cannot meet the requirements for commuting or for working fewer than 13 weeks.

American farmers are now facing one of the most critical labor shortages since 1942. Congress must make a choice. Even a small shortage of workers will cause crop losses that will decrease the supply and increase costs for farmers, related industries and consumers.

Nyssa Takes Glance Into Local History

An early blacksmith shop was on this same property now occupied by a modern little cottage; and, when excavating for the basement, a truckload of rusted iron articles was uncovered. Each could tell a romantic story long lost to only the imagination.

A general merchandise store was opened years ago with vision by the Wilson Brothers. Is it not momentous that their sons continue serving the community in the same capacity?

Their latest contribution is a modern parking mall on Main street. Parking lots are a familiar sight in most areas, but where have we noted one so colorful with its huge cool-textured pots holding delicate greens?

About a Pioneer Doctor! We would not forget the man who may well be called the patriarch of Nyssa—Dr. J. J. Sarazin—a young doctor whose plan was not to make Nyssa his home so many years ago but bound to it with his first patient.

He is a man who has given honor to his profession and a lifetime of service fraught with reality and romance that must forever be a part of Nyssa.

It all dates back to a quaint office in the center of a dusty lot, to his later ultra-modern clinic, never to be disassociated from his presence, wherever the occupant. Today it houses the medical offices of his son, Dr. David W. Sarazin. And today we also have two more up-to-date clinics, as well as a modern hospital.

School, Church Recalled Many changes crowd our memories! The unpretentious school house, replaced by prideful new ones of brick and glass, is where young Nyssans of today prepare to take their rightful place in any college.

The dear little Community Methodist church, long ago only ashes in the dirt and memories in our hearts, with her lovely stained glass windows, was lost to posterity. The staunch early membership was tested in frontier life and found not wanting. Among them, to name a few, were: the J. T. Longs, W. W. Fosters, John Wards, Neitherlies, Forbes and Sherwoods.

Now we may boast of many denominations, for well-attended churches have throughout history contributed to culture.

Improvements Continue Other improvements came and are still coming. A flower shop, lovely in every detail and fitted for any public service; with the owners, the Fangens, having exquisite taste in floral developing and arranging.

The comparatively new depot, ably piloted these last many years by Tom Jones and his well-organized crew.

More grocery stores and shops are now well in line with those of much larger towns. They are owned or operated by congenial men who understand produce and people.

Then there are two brothers, burning with ambition and imagination, willing to make the humblest beginning with confidence in their ability and to give us services of dignity and satisfaction. I am speaking of Bert and Kermit Lienkaemper.

One of their first services was one that may well have tested elder men of their profession—a funeral for eight. One-half dozen plus two caskets, a long line of pallbearers, and a filled church with police holding a swaying crowd outside. Bert couldn't perform this service today more calmly nor more worthily.

An East Main Renovation

In going farther east along Main street, through the underpass and viewing changes in the Rainbow hotel, we find Vear Haile, new owner, successful farmer and full-time sugar factory worker. He finds time, ably assisted by his wife, in making the hotel into the most modern apartments, landscaping the grounds with beautiful roses and other flowers. This is truly an asset to Nyssa.

To Journal readers who remember other phases in the growth of Nyssa, I urge you to write of them. As time pushes ahead we envision more and more healthy eye-appealing changes. And let's not lose sight of the fact that each individual carries his or her share of responsibility to aid in this program.

Growth From Lasting Effort

The foundation of any city, the framework that holds it together, does not lie in those who seek only an increase in their bank balance, nor in selfish pleasures; but rather in those lasting efforts woven of benefits to neighbors and service to future generations. Books are written, poems are composed and songs are sung about those who left intangible but still vibrant memories which live on and on.

So each must strive to make our town so worthwhile that upon our retirement other people will desire to enjoy the same privileges. Business firms seeing our pride and eminent security will seek us for new fields of operations.

New books going into circulation recently at Malheur county library in Ontario included the following.
"We Are Not Alone" by Walter Sullivan. A survey of past and present scientific theories and research which may lead to man's discovery of and communication with intelligent life elsewhere in the universe.
"Two Blocks Apart" edited by Charlotte Leon Mayerson. The recorded conversations of two 17-year-old boys, geographically related but socially and economically worlds apart, reveal their contrasting backgrounds and differing attitudes.
"American Policy Toward Communist Eastern Europe" by John C. Campbell. Objective information that will help the reader understand what has happened in the past and what is possible for the future.
"China: Empire of the 700 Million" by Harry Hamm. An evaluation of contemporary China in which the author shows why the West has got to face up to the country realistically, dispassionately and immediately.
"Behind the Great Wall" by Lorenz Stueki. The author's brief report is built on observations made on a recent trip to China which he points out was restricted by the authorities in both movement and communication with individual Chinese.
"Wiretapping on Trial" by Walter F. Murphy. A book intended to introduce its readers to the fundamentals of the judicial process and to the policy-making role of judges in the American political system.
"A Handbook on Witches" by Gillian Tindall. A lively account of the history, customs and lore of witchcraft.
