Indebtedness Related To Underpayment For Farm Production

After all the charges and counter-charges about who caused the increase in food prices, an article has been noted which states that rapidly expanding public and private indebtedness has a relationship to the underpayment to agriculture.

A Washington analyst, Carl H. Wilkens, warns of an economic collapse if farm prices and incomes are not brought into balance with wages and interest costs. He said Secretary Freeman estimates net farm income for 1966 will be $15.1 billion out of a national income of $590 billion. He compared this to the 1946-50 average of $15.1 billion net farm income out of a $222.4 billion annual national income.

"In other words, farm operators received nothing out of an increase of $378 billion of national income. It's the greatest example of exploitation of agriculture and rural areas in world history," Wilkens said.

The analyst noted particularly the rate of debt expansion by federal, state and local units of government, as well as private debt, during this same period. The gross debt in 1965 was $1,450.7 billion, compared to $566.6 billion in 1950, for an increase of $884 billion in 15 years.

income declined during the 1950-65 period. The writer's tabulation showed the underpayment to agriculture was $421 billion, the amount which farmers would have received if agricultural prices and income had been maintained at the same level as the rest of the economy.

The tabulation shows a definite ratio, averaging 2.1 to 1, between the rate of debt expansion and the underpayment to agriculture. This means an average of $2.10 debt expansion to each dollar of underpayment.

The writer quoted from "full parity" computations prices farmers should be receiving and compared them with prices reported by USDA on Feb. 15, 1966. Some examples were beef cattle, $41.80 and $22.60 (grade not specified); hogs, $32.20 and $27.20; wheat, $2.81 and $1.43; barley, $1.82 and $1.07; corn, $2.15 and $1.15.

Why I Hate Advertising

My name's Johnson. I'm a taxpaying American citizen and I hate advertising.

Take toothpaste. Since I was a pup I used the same toothpaste. So my wife reads ads about toothpaste that stops decay. Nothing will do but we use this new stuff. Sure, the kids don't have cavities any more but this new toothpaste sure doesn't taste to me like the old days. Thanks to advertising.

Take washing machines and dryers and all that jazz. These women read ads about saving work and time so they got appliances all over the place. I figure they haven't got enough to do anyway. Nuts to advertising.

If you want to get right down to it, take all this advertising my competition runs. These characters run ads with prices so low I got to run my own ads and practically give the stuff away. It's the only way I can get people in to buy my stuff. Advertising is a heck of a way to run a business.

Advertising is for the birds. It gives the customer all the breaks. Speaking for myself, the only time I ever read it is when I'm going to buy something and need to find out where I can get the best buy.

The only time it pays to be advertised at is when you're going to buy something.
