

ELECTRICITY NOW IS FLOWING over the newest addition to Idaho Power company's complex of 230,000-volt "backbone" transmission lines — thanks to the technical know-how and surefooted agility of construction men like those shown in this dramatic view. The new line, built at a cost of $3.5 million, extends 106 miles across mountains and desert between Boise and the company's Midpoint substation northeast of Jerome. These men, members of Idaho Power's mobile construction crews, are performing one of the final phases of work required to prepare the facility for service. Tolling with careful skill far above the ground, they are installing insulators on a steel tower standing more than 150 feet high. The new heavy-duty line provides an additional means of delivering electricity from the utility's Hells Canyon development to Magic Valley and eastern Idaho areas of its system. Consisting of more than 700 steel and wood towers, the facility is the third Idaho Power line to be equipped with "bundled," or paired, conductors capable of delivering 40 percent more electricity than conventional conductors.

Rams Average $75 At Annual Sale

Sale price average for 200 rams sold Saturday at the county fair grounds in Ontario was $74.23 with the top price being $285 for an individual.

The prize ram was consigned by Buck Howland and son of Cambridge and purchased by Tom Burton of the same town. Average price was somewhat lower than last year, due to the drought, according to Harry Sandquist, Malheur county agent.

Average price for Suffolks was $71.77; for Suffolk-Hampshire crossbreds, $90; for Columbias, $90.50; and for Panamas, $71.50.

Two hundred and thirty rams were consigned by 15 breeders from Oregon, Idaho and Washington, but only the top 200 were sold. These were classed and culled by Dr. Charles Dake and Fred Trenkel of Ontario, and John Leqerica of Adrian.

Administrator Dodson was unavailable at press time Wednesday afternoon for the above information, having a Parma appointment at the time contacted by a Journal reporter. The above figures were supplied by Stam, chairman of the board of the publicly taxed entity.
