New Warranty On 1967 Fords Told by Dealer

Keith Gentry, president of Gentry Ford Sales, Inc., Ontario, today announced that all purchasers of 1967 model Ford cars and light trucks will receive a 24-month or 24,000-mile basic vehicle warranty along with a five-year or 50,000-mile warranty on the power train components, which include the engine, transmission, drive line and rear axle.

The 24,000-mile warranty was pioneered by Ford Motor company on the Lincoln Continental and was later extended to the entire vehicle line.

Terms of the new warranty provide that for 24 months or for 24,000 miles on the entire vehicle, whichever comes first, and for five years or 50,000 miles on the power train, whichever comes first, free replacement, including related labor, will be made by authorized dealers of any part with a defect in workmanship or materials.

Tires and tubes are not covered by the warranty; appropriate adjustments will continue to be made by the tire people. Owners will remain responsible for normal power train and other maintenance operations, such as wheel, brake and clutch adjustments and engine tune-ups, and for routine replacement of such items as filters, spark plugs, ignition points, wiper blades, brake and clutch linings.

To maintain the power train warranty protection, the owner need only present evidence to a Ford dealer and obtain his certification, once every 12 months, that the minimum services required every six months or 6,000 miles have been performed.

This means that the engine oil and oil filter have been replaced and the carburetor air cleaner and filter, crankcase oil filter breather cap, automatic transmission front intermediate band, emission control system, lubricants and engine coolant have been serviced according to the recommended maintenance schedule of the vehicle in question.

The new warranty covers both the original owner and subsequent owners during the specified mileage and time periods. Gentry said that his dealership would introduce new 1967 models to the public on Friday, Sept. 30.

Natural gas satisfaction

Everybody's getting it!
What'll we do?

Well, maybe not everybody, but a great many people turned to natural gas for heating in the 1965-66 season, and our records indicate their numbers will increase heavily in the crisp fall and winter days ahead. You can't blame people for wanting natural gas. There's nothing like it. Flameless heat disappoints because it is dead and motionless and expensive. It just doesn't get around. Oil leaves much to be desired because it is sluggish and odorous and dirty. The intense blue flame of natural gas delivers fully-circulated, vented, fresh air heat to every corner of every room. There's no dirt; no noise; no fuss, no muss. And there'll be no tiny pellets of soot on your windowsills . . . unless, of course, your neighbor is still using another fuel.
