

Nyssa-Born Teenager Is Beehive State's First Girl Flagman

(This story was taken, in part, from a publication in Brigham City, Utah, and concerns a Nyssa-born young lady, Lil Allred, who recently became Utah's first girl flagman. The item was clipped and sent to the Journal by a Willard, Utah, friend who stated that Lil is a daughter of the late Ed Allred and Mrs. Jennie Allred. The young lady, her brothers and deceased sister attended Nyssa schools.)

"Stopping traffic is virtually every girl's dream. But to stop traffic and get paid for it is a delight of double proportions.

"This is the type of employment which Lil Allred recently began with Cox Construction company as flagman . . . er . . . girl.

"The 1965 graduate of Box Elder high school landed the job after kidding Max Cox, company chief. Lil stated, 'I'll be out there in the morning,' and Cox said, 'Okay.'

"Lil is also a waitress, but claims to enjoy her flagwork and says it's sure different. She is no stranger to construction work as her late father and brothers have been in the business for years.

"But getting involved herself is somewhat different. She is a target for many second looks as traffic slows. And remarks such as, 'Hey, you're stopping traffic' or 'I'd stop for you anytime,' are not unusual.

"And like any other red-blooded American girl, she likes it—after all, a girl doesn't get to stop traffic every day."

W. Conant Returns After Navy Service In Western Pacific

Sonarman Technician Third Class William J. Conant recently returned to home port in San Diego after a six-month deployment to the Western Pacific area, according to a Navy news release.

He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis J. Conant and has been serving aboard the destroyer, USS John A. Bole.

As a unit of the Seventh fleet, the Bole provided shore bombardment along the coast of South Vietnam and operated as an element of attack carrier striking forces in the Tonkin Gulf.

The destroyer visited ports in Japan, China, Taiwan, Malaysia, the Philippines and Hawaii.

Your PCA Credit Helps You Buy Labor-Saving Machinery

Farmers and stockmen use PCA loans to finance machinery that helps to increase production and cut costs. PCA—Production Credit Association—is a non-profit organization owned and operated by farmers and stockmen to provide dependable, low cost credit for farmers and stockmen. Here's how their loans work:

You have up to 7 years to repay capital improvement loans. Investments then pay for themselves with increased profits.

Operating funds are budgeted for an entire year, and you have money any time you need it.

Loan costs are lowest because you pay interest only on the money you actually use, and only for the time you use it.

Your payments are credited first to principal, reducing the balance subject to interest, and lowering your interest costs.

To help you learn about PCA financing, let us give you a free booklet, "Budgeting for Profit." No obligation.
