Card Developed For Brucellosis Test on Cattle

Cattlemen will no longer have to await the results of a laboratory tube test to find out if they have brucellosis in their herds. A card for field testing of animals has now been developed that can be used as a brucellosis test.

Dr. E. L. Henkel, supervisor of livestock disease control, veterinary division, Oregon Department of Agriculture, said this week that Dr. Glenn Rea, state veterinarian, and Dr. Orville Halverson, veterinarian in charge in Oregon for the USDA, have agreed the card can be used in Oregon for official program tests.

The card will make it possible to test large groups of animals simply by moving them through a chute and taking a small sample of blood, which is dropped onto this card.

When the blood is drawn, the animal is back-tagged and since results of the test are available within a few minutes it is possible to separate animals showing a positive reaction to the test from

SENIOR CITIZENS MEET

Senior Citizens met Friday in the basement of Nyssa Methodist church. Next meeting will be at 10:30 a.m. Friday, Nov. 18, in the basement of the church. Every one attending is asked to take a sack lunch. All residents of the community, 55 years of age and over, are welcome to attend.

INVITATION TO GRANGERS

Oregon Trail Grange members invite all Grangers of Malheur county to attend their officer installation meeting to be held at 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 3, in the Grange hall.

Mrs. W. Roff and staff will serve as installing officers.

the remainder of the herd. Those with a negative reaction can then be released to pasture or to the range.

Animals with a positive reaction on the card test are held and another blood sample taken, which is used for the standard tube test at the brucellosis laboratory.

Only about five minutes is required per cow for the card test and test results of an entire group of 100 to 250 animals are available 10 minutes after the blood sample is taken from the last cow.

Naomi A. Buchert Dies in California

Final rites for Naomi A. Buchert were conducted Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 25, 1966, at Jones mortuary in Lakeport, Calif., with interment made in the Hartley cemetery there.

Mrs. Buchert succumbed Oct. 22 at Lakeside hospital in Lakeport. She was born May 9, 1899, in Illinois and was a former Nyssa resident, having managed the Nyssa nursing home at two locations in the north section of town.

The deceased was a member of the Seventh Day Adventist church and was last employed as manager of Luchales' Fabric shop in Lakeport.

She is survived by three sons, Hal of The Dalles, Ore., Charles of Weiser, Idaho, and Myron Buchert of Orofino, Idaho; two daughters, Mrs. Margaret Fifer of Medford, Ore., and Mrs. Lenna Mould of San Fidel, N.M.

Also surviving are three brothers, three sisters, 22 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Upon request of family members, notice of Mrs. Buchert's death and obituary information was sent to the Journal by Alden H. Jones, manager of Jones mortuary in Lakeport.
