LETTER To the Editor

January 16, 1967

Gate City Journal
 Nyssa, Oregon
 Editor:

I would like to express my appreciation and thanks to all of the people who helped make our recent Nyssa invitational wrestling tournament a success.

Your paper was very cooperative, as usual, in advertising this event; the various restaurants were excellent in arranging for meals; numerous members of our community donated their services as scorers, timers, etc.; businessmen donated time and equipment; and of course many students of Nyssa high school donated their time and effort in making this tournament one to remember.

This is just another example of how a community can work together with its young people and produce a gratifying experience.

Again I say "thank you" to all who helped.

Sincerely,
 JOHN S. MOAWAD
 Tournament Director

Looking Back

Fifty-four years ago this spring, in 1913, a young Congressman drafted an income tax bill. His name: Cordell Hull. The bill provided for a normal tax of one percent. On large incomes it rose as high as six percent. Every taxpayer had a personal exemption of $3,000 and an additional $1,000 if married. The head of a family who had a $20,000 net annual income had to ante up $160 to Washington.

A year later, in January of 1914, a man named Henry Ford, not very well known across the nation in those days, announced that henceforth he would pay his workers a minimum wage of $5.00 a day for an 8-hour day — about three times the national average.

Now which of those two events would you suppose stirred up the greatest furor in the press?

The Henry Ford announcement wins, hands down. Even the war in Mexico moved to the inside pages. Some papers editorialized that the American free-enterprise system would be destroyed. Others thought that the workers would foolishly squander their money and realize no gain from it. The issue was debated wherever two gathered together. Some hailed the move as "an epoch in the world's industrial history." Others alleged that "the workers will be robbed of their independence by Ford's paternalism . . ."

Henry Ford made the working man a buyer of goods, even luxury goods, a consumer and an investor. This country, and every other in the world, felt the influence of that announcement in Detroit 53 years ago this month. Time passed, and Cordell Hull became Secretary of State.

The basic exemption on the income tax was trimmed 80 percent.

The basic tax was increased more than 20 times.

The value of the dollar depreciated some 55 percent. As this is written, union plumbers in New York announce acceptance of a new contract calling for $8.59 — an hour.

In Washington, however, the talk is of a 5 percent surtax on personal and corporate income in 1967.

Businessmen continue to put increasing amounts of money into the pay envelope.

But we continue to send men to Washington who take it away even faster.—U. S. Press Association.
