PICTORIAL CHANGEOVER ACTIVITIES

A FEW SCENES, snapped here and there in the Journal office late last week and early this week, as the plant buzzed with builders, plumbers, electricians, teachers and learners. In the photo above Gail Reece, looking rather bedraggled after long hours, learns to operate the recording unit of the new 'brainy' typesetting Justowriters. Her instructor is Vern Jacobsen of the Ilex company in Pocatello. In the upper right picture Ruben Lopez of the Journal staff unpacks a new waxer (or adhesive coater), as Lloyd Bain of Western Paper company gets the paper cutter in working order. The photo (right-center) tells the story of the beginning of a dark room. Workmen (l to r) are Dale Collins, Ralph Lewis and Wilbur Holcomb of Holcomb Construction and Eder Plumbing companies. Electric power was also a must and this was taken care of by Cecil Morrison Jr. of Morrison Electric company. Here he is installing a 'safe light' in the dark room. Staff Photos

4-H Group Meets
 Members of the Buena Vista 4-H club met recently with Shirley Cleaver presiding. Flag salute was led by John Cleaver and Jerry Mitchell. Roll call was taken by Karry Cleaver, and books were handed out to attending members for 4-H records to be kept. Next meeting will be held at 4 p.m. Friday, March 31 at the Lester Cleaver home.

KEEP GASOLINE OUTDOORS
 Keep gasoline outdoors, preferable in a garage and in a safe air-tight container.

From This Corner

BY T.M.B.

If I followed my belief on "Supply and Demand" there would be none of these columns in the paper. I do have plenty of the "Supply" but so far have found little demand for it. But with the change-over from letterpress to this new fangled deal called offset (at least it is new to us) and not knowing what I'm doing feel I must use some machinery even if it is this beat-up typewriter.

Have plenty of help this week. All the salesmen that sold all these thousands of dollars worth of new equipment are here in force showing (how simple?) the operation is. But so is an automatic transmission to the mechanic who understands it.

SO RIGHT!

This letter was recently printed in the Congressional Record. It was originally sent to the editor of the Akron, Ohio, Beacon Journal:

"To the editor:
 "I was told in 1964 that if I voted for Barry Goldwater that taxes would go up and there would be more war in Vietnam."

"They were right—I voted for Goldwater and taxes have gone up and there is more war in Vietnam."

GENTLEMEN FARMERS

The Allis-Chalmers company has built a most unusual tractor. It has an enclosed cab which is air conditioned and pressurized to keep it free of dust. It has a stereo tape player, AM-FM radio, closed-circuit tv, tinted glass, cushioned seats and other extras.

The man who tills his soil in the cool comfort of this contraption can call himself a gentleman-farmer with no fear of contradiction from us." — Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times.

The Gordon, Nebr., Journal says: "A leading economist fears a period of inflation may be just around the corner. That's comparable to a man standing waist-deep in water fearing his feet may get wet."

And from the Westby, Wisc., Times — "Many businessmen are beginning to wonder if it wouldn't be a wise idea to have a guaranteed annual customer before they start getting too involved with a guaranteed annual wage."

DID YOU KNOW?

Lightning moves 30,000 times as fast as a bullet?

That an article must have been made prior to 1830 to be rated an antique by the U. S. government?

The average car vacation trip lasts 12 days-1400 miles are traveled and each occupant spends an average of $165. The AAA says a further break-down shows out of each dollar (averages) 50 cents is for food, 20 cents for retail store items, 22 cents for car costs and 8 cents for entertainment and recreation?

ON THE LIGHTER SIDE

Harry was told by his clergyman that whiskey was his worst enemy. Harry asked, "Wasn't it just last Sunday you were telling us to love our enemies?" His answer—"It was. But I didn't say anything about swallowing them."

On a church bulletin board: "This is a segregated church; for sinners only."

Money may talk but today's dollar doesn't have enough cents to say much.

Joint Bank Accounts

Should your bank account be joint? Of the many types of joint bank accounts, the one which is mostly used is the joint account with right of survivorship. Such an account can be opened by any two or more persons, for example, by husband and wife, or by friends, or business partners. Either person can deposit

It's Your Law Always Alimony

Rose was a successful business woman, owning a dress shop and earning about $7,000 a year. She and her husband, Ben, had no children.

Ben was a bookkeeper who earned about $5,000 a year. Rose sued for divorce on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment and asked for alimony, and attorney fees. Ben counter-claimed for divorce against Rose.

Rose asked for alimony, although her income was larger than Ben's, because she claimed she had a right to alimony regardless of Ben's circumstances.

Do you believe that Rose is entitled to alimony, even though she is making a substantial income?

The courts have held that alimony is not a matter of right and when a wife has the ability to earn a living it is not the policy of the law to give her a perpetual lien on her divorced husband's future income. The allowance of alimony is determined by the necessities of the wife and the financial ability of the husband.

In the divorce Rose did not prove that she would not continue to earn a good living in her shop. The court held that an award of alimony cannot be based on a conjectural possibility of a future change in her circumstances. Therefore, Rose was unable to obtain alimony though both she and Ben were awarded divorces.

money and withdraw it without the other's consent or signature. If one of them dies, then the other owns the entire balance. Depositors in joint accounts usually sign a specific agreement with the bank which spells out in detail their relationship with the bank and their rights to draw on the account.

There are several advantages to the joint account with the right of survivorship. It is convenient. Either party can transact business on the account. If one person becomes sick, the other can make deposits or withdrawals. If it is a checking account, either party can write checks.

When one deposits money, the other immediately acquires certain rights in the account, and can withdraw the money in full, even before the death of the party who deposited it.

Even though such accounts are a popular device for transferring money at death, they are not a means of avoiding inheritance or estate taxes. Both the federal government and the state of Oregon provide for the taxing of money transferred in this manner.

In fact, though there never can be any tax savings from the use of a joint bank account, there can be tax losses, in some circumstances, because of peculiarities of tax law with respect to joint tenancy bank accounts.

If the amount of money in such a joint account is substantial, it usually is wise to check to find out what the tax consequences will be if one of

Refreshing the Nation's Economy

What is the brewing industry worth to the American economy? Reckon it in billions. Here are some of our annual outlays, in round numbers:

- Excise taxes (federal, state, local) ... $1.4 Billion
 - Agricultural purchases (grains, etc.) ... $215 Million
 - Packaging purchases (wood, paper, metal) ... $550 Million
 - Salaries and wages ... $2.5 Billion
- ON THESE FOUR ITEMS ALONE—MORE THAN $4 BILLION

The Tender Trap

Is there such a thing as a "little socialism?" Or is it like peanuts or popcorn—taken in small pieces, it creates a bigger appetite?

There's a story about a trapper who stopped in a town in Georgia and asked where he could find the famous hogs that were supposed to live nearby. The townsfolk told him not to waste his time — that no one ever had or ever would trap those hogs. After he insisted, they told him the way.

A few weeks later, the trapper returned with his wagon galled high with trussed-up hogs. The incredulous townsfolk asked how he did it.

"Simple," said the trapper. "All I did was to throw some corn in a clearing. At first, the hogs would not touch the corn, but after a few days some of the young 'uns snatched an ear or two. In a few more days, the other hogs figured they had better get their share and soon all the hogs were eating the corn they got for nothing."

"They soon gave up rooting for themselves. I then started to build my trap around the corn. Only a few boards a day so they wouldn't notice the change. Then, I put on the door and the next day while they were all inside eating my free corn, I slammed the door. They didn't know what was happening until it was all over."

The trapper summed up: "I can trap anything that depends on me for a handout."

HINTS ABOUT BOILS

Don't squeeze or puncture boils; this may serve only to drive the infection deeper.

Game Kill ...

 of about 6 days of hunting for each hunter. Of the 11,400 animals taken, 8,030 were bulls. About 2,700 of the animals taken were Roosevelt elk and the remainder the Rocky Mountain species.

For the first time since big game kill records have been kept, the Game Commission included the black bear in the hunter questionnaire survey. This animal in the future will become a part of the permanent records of the annual statewide hunter success story. This first survey as revealed by hunters shows that approximately 3,800 black bear were taken during 1966.

200,000 Sheep ...

 They also check with the workers to see if they are happy, being treated well and getting the amount of pay agreed upon in the contract.

Not of the least importance in the huge sheep operations, are the 50 dogs trained and used by the shepherders. These are largely of the Border Collie strain and each can do the work of many men in keeping the animals under control.

Water Rights ...

 office, the Secretary of State, State Treasurer, Attorney General, tax and fish commissions; in fact, you name it and then tell us which ones should be cut or eliminated. The time is right for critics to pinpoint those areas which they feel are over-zealous in their spending of state funds."

E. W. AND I TAKE MOSTLY "THE BIG THREE. AGAIN ... Are Responsible for the largest increase in state expenditures. Higher education, welfare and state institutions are recommenced at the level of $265 million, leaving less than $109 million for all other state programs. Salary adjustments will take a significant chunk of the increase, so it cannot be said that the level of services is being drastically enhanced. But bear in mind, too, that the McCall budget, prepared under the direction of John Mosser, Director of Finance and Administration, has largely shown any resemblance of "fat" from the Hatfield budget. Which brings us back to the basic question: Where can this budget be pruned to provide any more tax relief from the General Fund?

"WHILE WE'RE ON THE SUBJECT ... let's not forget that the State of Oregon provides some additional revenue to local units of government. The cigarette tax, approved last May, will add almost $14 million to the property tax relied account; plus an equal amount in direct grants to cities and counties for expenditure without strings attached. Liquor profits, licenses and privilege taxes will add another $13 million to the coffers of cities and counties. Transfers from the Highway Fund to cities and counties will exceed $52 million without an increase in the gas tax or auto licenses. And none of these funds are included in the previous summary."
