Stretching across a low desert plateau in Malheur county, north of Ontario, is a 32-inch steel penstock that will carry water from the nearby Snake river to the world's largest potato farm. It is being developed by Skyline Farms, Inc., a subsidiary of Ore-Ida Foods, Inc. The penstock will lift the water 400 to 600 feet through the use of several huge irrigation pumps totalling 11,950 horsepower. Two pumping stations will move approximately 75,000 gallons of water per minute. Distribution will be made through 100 miles of portable aluminum pipe, three to four inches in diameter, and go out through sprinkler heads. Thousands of tons of dirt will have to be moved before the land is leveled. Forty-five miles of roadway will be built to serve the property, and when completed the corporation says there will be enough potatoes grown in a single season on the land, if placed end-to-end, to extend around the 25,000 miles of the earth's diameter at the equator.

NHS Guidance Head Attends State Meetings

Charles Quinowski, NHS Guidance Counselor, attended the March 13 - 14 Oregon Personnel and Guidance association's spring conference in Portland. Theme of the meeting was "Our Mutual Challenge."

The business meeting was followed with a keynote address by Dr. Leon P. Minear, superintendent of public instruction. He expressed concern in the fact that there is a continuing drift toward federal intervention in education. He sighted that the historical responsibility for education belonged with the state.

He stated that the reason for the federal government entering more and more into various phases of education comes as a result of the state not meeting needs and responsibilities of educating its people.

Dr. Minear mentioned the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) program and other such federal activities as being designed to reinforce aspects of the educational program which are not now handled through the formal school program. Specifically, Dr. Minear's essays. Following the regular business session, Mrs. Margaret Jorgensen gave a demonstration on accessories. She had a number of various accessories with her, as well as pictures and gave the group some very helpful advice on use of jewelry.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses to 11 members in attendance.

Les Gardner who is confined to the Veterans' hospital in Boise underwent surgery March 13 and is reported to be doing very well. He will be dismissed from the hospital later this week.

Members of the Nu Acres community served a St. Patrick's Day dinner Friday evening and report there was a good attendance.

The dinner was under the direction of Mrs. Jean Burton with Thelma Wilson as co-chairman. A number of the ladies assisted in serving and preparing of the dinner.

CALDWELL LAD INJURED

Dean Otto of Caldwell, son of the Crawford Ottos and grandson of Mrs. Alden Bryan was quite severely injured in a bicycle accident Friday afternoon near his home. He was taken to the Caldwell Memorial hospital and was released Sunday evening.

Mrs. Alden Bryan visited in Caldwell Saturday afternoon with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James Libby. They left Sunday for Canada and from there will go to South America.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Otto and Kenneth, Johnny Otto of Caldwell were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alden Bryan.

Richard Smit of Madras spent the weekend at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Baxter. He went to Nampa March 15 to visit with relatives prior to leaving for Navy duty.

Mr. and Mrs. Brian V. Hart of Boise were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Baxter. Later in the day, Mr. and Mrs. Baxter visited Mr. and Mrs. Joe Seburn at Nyssa, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Nielsen in Ontario. They also attended the Saturday evening wedding reception of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Kynaston in Ontario.

Jack Burton, who has been shearing sheep near Riggins returned home Saturday evening to spend the weekend.

remarks dealt with secondary education where he emphasized the great need for a stress of non-academic curriculum (vocational and technical training).

The talk suggested that changes are needed on a mass basis to avert the dull static situation which prevails for the non-academically inclined student.

The speaker suggested that aims of secondary education should be re-examined. The mold should be changed, so to speak, to make education more relevant to real life experience. The stated goal should be more to teach the child to do better, that which he is going to do anyway."

The State Superintendent suggested the following possibilities for improvement of the secondary school program:

MANY CHANGES NEEDED

1. More individualized instruction by making use of advanced teaching aids.

2. Some kind of work experience should parallel or precede the transition to a higher stage of education.

3. There should be a complete and total feedback of information on the student following graduation from the educational institutions.

4. Education and technical training should be stressed to all students as a means to upgrade skill.

5. Major shifts and changes are needed with regard to utility of educational facilities. This would include longer hours of plant use and would extend into summer education programs.

Dr. Minear summed up his talk by emphasizing that further education is imperative for better citizens in the future. He is a member of an inter-state committee selected by the governors to seek out ways in which education can be brought back into the realm of state responsibilities.

In addition to the stimulating talk by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, the counselors were allowed to select two of twelve workshop sessions.

The first selection made by Nyssa's high school counselor was "Ways of Reaching the Under Achievers." This workshop dealt with kinds of programs for consideration, program involvement, special methods of teaching the under achiever, and group communications and counseling.

The second workshop session was a panel discussion on "The Transition to Post-High School Training." A panel of college students presented their views of trouble areas in high school and college transition.

Quinowski also visited the newly developed college, vocational, and scholarship resources center at Wilson high school in Portland.
