Follow Rules On Pesticides

Spring sunshine brings out the bugs and pests that nibble on the precious plants of gardeners and the chain reaction brings out the gardener with his spray gun loaded with pesticides.

The approach of this annual war against insects and plant diseases brings a warning from the Oregon Department of Agriculture's chief chemist, J. D. Patterson, on the extreme care needed in handling and using pesticides.

His first advice is to carefully read and follow the directions on the container in which the pesticide is purchased and to never store it in anything but the original container.

Patterson notes that it is most important to use pesticides as directed on food crops or otherwise it could result in the residue being above the tolerances set for it.

He also has some other rules for persons handling and using the pesticide sprays or dusts. They are:

- Keep out of reach of children, pets and irresponsible people.
- Do not smoke while using a pesticide.
- Wear protective clothing when using the pesticide, and if directions on the label say "wear a mask", wear it.
- Wash contaminated clothing before reuse.
- Wash hands thoroughly after using a pesticide.
- Do not spray until all water containers and food in area have been covered.
- Avoid spilling the pesticide.
- When disposing of empty containers be sure they have been disposed of in a safe manner and are out of reach of children, pets and farm animals.

The prayer of faith will save the sick.—(James 5:15)

We can pray for another's healing. Our prayers are effective. More than we realize, our prayers have real healing power. We can pray in faith, when we see the one for whom we pray as filled with God's spirit, we become part of a great healing work. When we pray, we should think of ourselves as a channel through which God's healing work is done.
