JANET NEDRY

The NHS Senior has participated in many school activities. She has been a member of Pep Club, G.A.A., the marching band, concert band, pep band, and has been an active representative of the American Field Service committee.

Organizations outside of school have also taken a considerable amount of her time. She has been an active Candy Stripper, serving as vice president for the organization. She is a member of the Episcopal Young Churchmen's organization and also a member of the church choir.

Janet has also claimed extensive special honors in high school activities. She was elected activity chairman of the junior class; this year she has served as secretary of the senior class. She was the assistant editor of the yearbook during her junior year and is serving as editor this year. The honor student was chosen "Girl of the Month" for September, an honor determined jointly by faculty and student body.

Service projects have also taken some of Janet's time. She assisted in a clothing drive, is a co-chairman for the junior-senior prom and was actively involved in senior career day this year.

Charles Quinowski, NHS guidance counselor, has singled Janet out as being a student with many talents. "But more important," he says, "she is an individual who is dependable and cooperative in tasks which do not normally bring distinction and recognition." Quinowski cited her work on senior career day last fall as an example of this type of endeavor.

Ullman Bill Would Permit Pay For Medicare to be Delayed

Washington, D. C. -- Congressman Al Ullman introduced legislation last week to permit Medicare patients to wait for reimbursement from the Social Security system before paying their medical expenses.

"If the patient can file for his entitlement from the Social Security insurance intermediary with an itemized and unpaid bill, he can pay for the entire bill with dignity when he receives his Medicare portion," Ullman declared.

Ullman said his bill has the enthusiastic support of the American Medical Association. Ullman, one of the draftsmen of Medicare in the House Ways and Means Committee, said the amendment would "correct an awkward situation which has confused and disturbed many of our elderly citizens."

Under present law, payment for medical services under Medicare can be made in two ways, Ullman explained. The physician may accept assignment for the services rendered and submit the charges to the participating insurance com-

Centennial Year Activities Set by Grange Organization

National Grange Week this year comes midway in the centennial year of the country's oldest farm organization. It was in 1867 that Oliver H. Kelley conceived of the Grange as a means for aggrieved farmers to collectively strive for remedial action and form a community-service organization.

The Grange has remained steadfast to this goal by fathering the major legislation of the past century that changed the face of agricultural and rural America, while at the same time preserving the country's traditional adherence to family unity.

It was on December 4, 100 years ago, when seven men gathered around the desk of William Saunders at the newly-created Agriculture Department, put Kelley's plan into operation and founded the National Grange.

After some frustrating beginnings, the Grange mushroomed into a mammoth organization which, at its peak, numbered 800,000 members. Today, the Grange has more than 620,000 members from 7,000 local Granges.

Although basically interested in fostering the welfare of the farmer and farm-oriented people, the Grange has always integrated its program into a community-wide concept that included civic, youth and women's activities.

For 20 years, the Grange, with the Sears Foundation, has sponsored a Community Progress Program, under which national contests are held among local Grangers for community-development projects.

The last $10,000 first-prize winner, for instance, was the Grange in Spencer, N. Y., which with the Spencer Chamber of Commerce, converted a swamp in the middle of town into an attractive lake.

The young have always been encouraged to participate in Grange activities since the national organization's creation. Youngsters 14 and over have always been eligible for full membership, and for 91 years younger aspirants have been eligible for Junior Grange membership.

Junior Granges have instigated such following activities: summer camps, group discussions, nature studies, first aid instructions, bus tours and participation in National Grange competitions in the fields of art, photography and sewing.

Women have had an equal role in National Grange action since its founding -- an unprecedented position for any national organization at the time. (The Grange called for women's suffrage in 1855 -- 65 years before the 19th Amendment provided for this right.)

Today the Grange has widespread programs for women; besides homemaking functions in connection with Grange Hall activities (4,000 Granges have their own halls, which are used by their communities), and home economics, Grange women also participate in Grange activities as lecturers, officers and committee chairmen.
