Highway officials explained that during the dry summer months, oil droppings from passing cars and trucks and fine dirt particles accumulate on the pavement. As long as the pavement remains dry, the oil has no effect on the operation of traffic. With the advent of the first rain, however, the pavement assumes all of the characteristics of an ice-skating rink.

It was pointed out that stopping distances under these conditions are approximately twice those on dry pavement. The problem of merely keeping the car on the road can become difficult. When sufficient rain has fallen to wash off the oil, the problem no longer exists.

Officials are extremely concerned this year, because of the prolonged drought of this summer. They said an unusually large amount of oil has accumulated on the streets and highways. When the first rains come, pavements will become as slippery as glare ice.

All drivers are cautioned to drive with extreme care during and following the first rains.

POLITICS!

A cynic might observe that the President hardly can be blamed for playing politics during the riots. After all, LBJ's policy of playing politics with the poor is what helped cause the riots!

Governor Romney shouldn't complain. While Detroit was burning, he asked LBJ for Federal troops and got them within two days. General Westmoreland has been asking for more men in Vietnam for six months and still hasn't got them.

One thing you have to admit: the Administration sure has an uncanny eye for the future. It came up with the idea of a Demonstration Cities program and just look at all the cities having demonstrations!

Another four years of Democratic rule and there won't be any country left for the Kennedys to fight over.

A driver's license examiner will be on duty at Nyssa city hall between the hours of 9 a.m. and 2 p.m., Friday, Sept. 22, according to an announcement received from the Department of Motor Vehicles of Oregon.

Emblem Ladies Report Activities

Great concern is being expressed by highway and traffic safety officials concerning the potential hazards which will exist on most of Oregon's highways when the present record dry spell finally breaks and the first rains come.

Highway officials explained that during the dry summer months, oil droppings from passing cars and trucks and fine dirt particles accumulate on the pavement. As long as the pavement remains dry, the oil has no effect on the operation of traffic. With the advent of the first rain, however, the pavement assumes all of the characteristics of an ice-skating rink.
