Mr. and Mrs. Bart Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. Hussey of Jun-tura were Jan. 21 afternoon visitors in the Ray Simpson home.

CHARLES THOMSON, new NHS band director told a Bulldog reporter, "I like all types of music, popular and classical". He taught chorus first semester, but now has replaced Craig Northrup, who was called for basic training in the National Guard. Thomson teaches high school, junior high, and elementary band. Of special interest is the fact that the band instructor performed in a dance band to earn his way through college. After finishing his college training, Thomson began teaching music. At Newberg, Oregon, he was supervisor of the music department for twelve years and vice principal of the high school. He also taught three years in Sherwood, Oregon and was principal at Dayton, Oregon before beginning to teach at Nyssa High school. "I have enjoyed very much the attitude of the students toward music," commented Thomson. "The progressiveness of NHS in music compares favorably with any other school I've seen." NHS Bulldog photo.

Dance Successful

Many area residents helped to make the benefit square dance, which was held recently at the New Plymouth V.F.W. Hall, a huge success.

An incomplete report states that a final total of over $100 will be added to the treasury of The Treasure Valley Association for Handicapped and Retarded Children to help further their projects.

A hearty thanks goes to the public for its support, the Silver Leaf group of Emmett, the New Plymouth Merry Mixers, Kiwanis Club, Jaycees and others who helped with the affair. Jim Foster of New Plymouth kept the dance lively by calling dances during the evening.

Dr. John Long Named Malheur Head Of Water Safety Council

Dr. John E. Long of Nyssa has been named Malheur County Water Safety Council chairman for "Operation Westside" in region 1. The regional office is in Boise, with Harold E. Wersan serving as Bureau of Reclamation representative.

The following information was taken from a directory of Community Water Safety Councils, 1967-68, published by the U S Department of Interior, "Past achievements of the B of R have been measured in terms of acre-feet of water, in kilowatts of hydroelectric energy, and in acres of irrigated farmland."

"With the introduction of 'Operation Westside' another dimension was recognized: That of Safety, and the protection of human life."

"Millions of Americans each year visit Reclamation lakes and reservoirs to enjoy the almost limitless recreation opportunities they provide. Since its inception, OW has contributed significantly to the safety and enjoyment of the public in Reclamation areas throughout the West."

"Operation Westside is dedicated to the active, untiring promotion of water safety through public awareness and community participation. Jointly sponsored by the American Red Cross and the B of R, OW began with the organization of the Yakima Valley Water Safety Council in Yakima, Wash., in 1957. Today there are 30 community water safety councils actively working to advance the cause of water safety in other Reclamation recreation areas."

"The public is indebted to the men and women who comprise the membership of these councils for their dedicated and untiring efforts to prevent drownings: We of the Bureau of Reclamation are truly grateful for their continued support of this program. - Wilbur P. Kane, Assistant Commissioner."
