clearly defines our government as a "Republic". It guarantees to the people of America a "Republican" form of government. No where does it mention a "democracy".

Benjamin Franklin warned that we have a "Republic-if we can keep it".

The brightness of the American dream has been tarnished by a tendency toward socialism and false security by a gradual encroachment upon state and individual rights through federal government.

A republic places limitations and restraints on the Federal government. If the people become indifferent and allow the administrators to usurp their rights under the Constitution, under the external appearance of "democracy", our Republic, with the sovereign right vested in the people, could be destroyed. - NHS Bulldog
