MISSOURI TOWN BRISTLES AT CAT BURIAL SERVICE

By William E. Miller The Kansas City Times

It was a solemn ceremony, the day they buried Fuzzy the cat. In a specially made wooden coffin, protected by a concrete vault, Fuzzy was buried about two months ago in the presence of her mistress...

Since then, the fur has flown in this Lawrence County community of about 5,000 persons, which lies 4 1/2 miles southwest of Springfield.

So, it appears that Fuzzy will remain in the Orval P. Hodges' family plot, although not peacefully for awhile.

But we're decided to wait until this incident dies down. One of these days before too long, we'll bring it up and pass it as quietly as possible.

How long that will be is anybody's guess. Because of those who are incensed and those who are amused, the controversy lingers.

Among the unamused is Frank Peterson, operator of the Peterson chapel who drove the car that took Mrs. Verla W. Hodges to Maple Park for the cat burial.

Tired of Issue "I don't want to say anything more about this thing," Peterson said.

However, he later explained that Mrs. Hodges had asked him to be in charge of Fuzzy's funeral, complete with embalment.

Peterson said he declined, but did consent to drive Mrs. Hodges to the cemetery, where they met a laborer who had prepared the grave and Doyle Adams, the sexton.

Peterson also provided transportation for the cat's body.

Adams said he was at the cemetery as an observer.

"I just went out to see what was going on," Adams said. "It looked unusual enough that I didn't want anything to do with it."

He said the cat was buried in one of seven lots purchased by Mrs. Hodges, when her husband died several years ago.

The couple's son also is buried there.

The cat's small grave, discernible by raised sod that has not had time to blend with the rest of the grass, is marked by a 4-inch granite square with a cross.

Peterson said the burial had not caused any problems beyond "a lot of static and hot air."

As the story goes in Aurora, Fuzzy was a 22-year-old Persian cat that was paralyzed the last two years of its life. Mrs. Hodges, confined to wheelchair, kept the cat in a baby bed.

Petitions to exhume the cat were reported, but failed to materialize, a resident said.

Mayor Hubbard, administrator of the Lawrence County Nursing home, said he knew of no petitions, and insisted that the matter was receiving too much attention.

"It's just a dead cat as far as we're concerned," he said. "Frankly, I'm more interested in live people."
