

OWEN O. BERRETT

He was recently selected by Brigham Young university in Provo, Utah as recipient of a scholarship for the 1968-69 academic year. The scholarship is presented in recognition of academic achievement, qualities of character and leadership.

Owen was salutatorian of the NHS 1965 graduating class, and during his four years of high school carried a rigorous load of subjects.

While a junior, he received the Bausch and Lomb honorary science award, and attended the Junior Engineer and Scientist summer institute. He was vice president of his senior class and served on other committees during his school term.

The scholarship recipient is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Berrett of route 2, Nyssa.

ADRIAN NINE RELINQUISHES STATE TITLE

Crow high school, backed by sharp relief pitching of Mike Maley, won the Oregon Class B baseball championship Thursday with a 5-4 victory over Adrian.

The Cougars scored four runs in the third inning to overcome Adrian's early 2-0 lead.

Maley pitched the final four periods of the seven-inning game and allowed only one run. Adrian loaded the bases in the last inning, but a double-play ended the rally.

Bill Skogan and G. B. Condra were on the mound for the Antelopes, with Dan Cutler behind the plate.

Renewed Interest Shown In East-Oregon Soybeans

Renewed research interest is being shown in soybeans in Eastern Oregon.

Dr. J. Ritchie Cowan, head of Oregon State University's farm crops department, says tests have indicated that extremely high yields of quality soybeans can be produced in the irrigated areas around Ontario.

"This year, preliminary soybean trials also will be held at OSU's Experiment Stations near Hermiston and Moro to see how well the protein-rich legume produces in those different climatic areas," he added.

OSU agronomist Luther Fitch reveals, "Intests conducted between 1958 and 1964, then-record yields of 3,300 to 3,600 pounds of soybeans per acre were obtained at the Malheur Experiment Station near Ontario."

The record U.S. average yield, established in 1966, is about 1,525 pounds.

"Recently," Fitch notes, "top soybean producers in the Midwest have achieved yields exceeding 3,000 pounds per acre. But with newly developed cultural methods and increased research, it seems likely that Oregon could improve on its previous record."

Soybean production advantages in the test areas include warm days and nights during the growing season, and relatively high supplies of carbon dioxide in the air. In addition, somewhat larger bean sizes were produced in the Ontario tests.

Cowan and Fitch observe that soybeans are not presently grown in Eastern Oregon because they are not competitive with such alternative crops as alfalfa seed, wheat, sugar beets and potatoes. Also, soybeans must be processed, and a processing plant is not presently available.

"However," they point out, "there are some signs that the situation may be changing. Many observers feel that an increase in soybean prices is inevitable with the growing world need for protein-rich foods."

Varieties slated for testing in the OSU trials include Merit, which appears the most promising for Eastern Oregon conditions. Among the problems to be studied are moisture timing, virus diseases and insect damage.

An investigation of the use of growth regulating hormones also is planned. It is expected that the trials will reconfirm the need for special attention to seed inoculation -- a must for good soybean yields in Eastern Oregon.

WORK SMARTER - NOT HARDER

LITTLE POM - PONS OF COTTON FLUFF STRUNG LIKE BEADS are now available by the yard. Mrs. Dorothy Brown, Oregon State University Extension home furnishings specialist, suggests ways you can use them and thereby join the "Work Smarter Not Harder" society.

Hang a row of the "strings" to make a room divider or curtains. The company that manufactures them also makes rods, ring clips and a special tape which may be used to hang a series of strings of the balls. You might say this is a modern version of the old portier curtain.

No sewing is necessary when using the pom-poms, since they will not unravel. Available in many colors, they can give a lift to your decor and are also washable.

Other uses are trimming window shades, wastebaskets, lamp shades and pillows. The balls may be attached with needle and thread, staples, glue or double-faced masking tape.

IS IT SAFE TO STORE OPENED FRUIT IN THE CAN?

Marie Tribble, Oregon State University's extension nutritionist says "yes," but keep it in the refrigerator. Also, it's advisable to cover the container. Reconstituted frozen juice concentrates should also be covered. However, glass or plastic containers are preferred for juices because tin cans may impart a metallic flavor.

Opened jars of preserved fruit products such as jellies, jams and preserves need refrigeration to keep the food from spoiling.

It's Your Law!

HOW TO LOSE AUTO INSURANCE

When Jack's insurance agent called last week to tell him his automobile insurance had been cancelled, Jack was mad. "How can I drive my car now? I need it for work."

"You can still get insurance, Jack," his agent replied. "Your record isn't bad enough to make you totally ineligible. I can arrange for 'assigned risk' insurance for you."

"What's 'assigned risk' insurance?"

"Assigned risk" insurance," he explained, "is automobile liability insurance you can apply for if you are unable to obtain regular insurance. You can apply for it through your regular insurance agent. All companies who write insurance in Oregon distribute the applications equitably."

"How much is it going to cost me?" Jack wanted to know.

"It will cost you more, Jack. People like you with poor driving records pay a graduated surcharge. But there is no surcharge for drivers who have had no accidents or convictions during the preceding three years."

"Why do insurance companies reject certain drivers?" Jack asked.

"They do it for various reasons. Some drivers repeatedly disregard the law. Young drivers who think nothing of getting tickets for squirreling, running stop signs, speeding, etc. are often in this group."

Of course, drivers who are older in years, but equally immature, are likewise rejected. "A few are rejected for driving while intoxicated or for some other serious offense."

"Your problem, Jack, is a common one. You have simply been involved in too many accidents recently."

"I hope you have learned a lesson. If you improve your driving now and let the surcharge be your reminder, you will be able to have normal insurance again in a few years. If you don't you may become such a bad risk that you become ineligible for even 'assigned risk' insurance. Just one more ticket for some drivers puts them in this situation."

BRIDES -- YOUR NEW BRIGHT COLORED BATH TOWELS might be a laundry problem at first. Colors are likely to run.

To remove excess dye, wash them separately from other clothes. Use hot water with just a little detergent and repeat the treatment until the rinse water runs clear.

Once rid of this excess dye, the towels will still retain their appearance and can be washed with other colored clothes.

A fabric softener in the final rinse will help keep the towels soft and fluffy. Skip softener now and then for best absorbency.

A FAT CHILD ISN'T NECESSARILY HEALTHY, says Marie Tribble, Oregon State University Extension nutritionist. If parents allow children to overstuff themselves and become obese without making serious efforts to correct their eating habits the foundation is laid for obese and unhappy adults.

Miss Tribble says there is no evidence to support the idea that a fat baby or child is happier or healthier than a thin one. On the contrary, a lean child is more likely to become a trim and healthy adult.

It's smarter and easier to help children develop good eating habits while young than to change poor habits later.

WANT TO EARN MONEY with jobs you can do at home? Don't be hasty about taking on a work-at-home plan, especially if money must be sent immediately for information. Some of these deals are outright frauds. The advertiser may ask for a dollar or more and have no intention of sending anything in return.

On the other hand, there are a number of legitimate opportunities for work at home. By asking questions, you'll be able to distinguish these from the frauds.

DIANE JENNINGS

She will begin her studies at the University of Oregon School of Nursing in Portland on June 17.

Diane is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Jennings, is a 1967 graduate of Nyssa high school and this past school year has been attending Treasure Valley Community college.

She is recipient of a Malheur Memorial nursing scholarship. Provisions for the funds were established in 1950 by various local organizations. Among the scholarship sponsors are Nyssa Chamber of Commerce, Fraternal Order of Eagles auxiliary, Nyssa Lions club and Malheur Memorial hospital auxiliary.

According to Chairman Mrs. Harold (Kay) Brendle, the funds are available to deserving high school graduates who plan to enter the field of nursing or become laboratory technicians.

Recipients must also maintain approved scholastic records and reflect qualities to be accepted into schools of their choice.
