Oregon State University for 1 quarter and Boise College for one year. The influence of all of these schools is felt in the rich color, large solid shapes and imaginative approach in general.

The work is highly imaginative and inventive; these are the tools of a creative artist. Most of the drawings are of people and no model was used so that with a design, rather than an object, emphasis could be enforced. This idea is supported in a statement which Suzanne made for the exhibition: "I am the Pepsi Generation, the supposed 'anything goes' group. I would more like the attached motto to mean that now, today, is the time for explaining ideas. I may rebel against elders rules, but I am going to explore them first before discarding them. In essence, I am explaining, scratching at the surface of a subject that can occupy whole lifetimes."

The exhibition will be up for two more weeks and may be seen almost any time except Sunday.
