"Why can't we have just one candidate, who can stand on his own two feet and say: 'I'm for less spending, less taxes, reduction of our national debt, less giveaways, more work for a day's pay, less crime, no riots, less strikes, less wrangling in our schools and universities, less bureaucracy, reduced doles to all federal departments, less waste in armaments, less foreign aid, less big brother to the whole world, more responsibilities to the

New Insect Pest Concerns Stockmen

A relatively new livestock insect pest in the area of real concern to stockmen is the Face Fly according to George W. Bain, County Agent. This fly similar in appearance to the common house fly is a particular nuisance around the head and eyes of livestock. It is a major factor in the spread of pink eye in feed lot cattle and among calves still on the cows, since they move from one animal in a group to another.

There is no single simple approach to face fly control. Best results have been obtained according to Bain with self treating devices containing any good fly control insecticide. By this control method the cattle get a daily application without the necessity of corralling and spraying. The self treating device located by the water source or salt ground gives the livestock an opportunity to rub on the insecticide treated material and therefore keep the infestation down to a minimum.

Another method that has proven satisfactory for several operators Bain says is to use a salt or mineral block containing an insecticide which passes through the animal and kills the flies as they hatch in droppings. Care should be used to follow directions on the label of these materials, Bain warns, since some of them are not to be used on producing dairy cattle or in feed lot cattle to go to slaughter soon.
