AMERICAN WAR MEDALS AND DECORATIONS by Evans E. Kerrigan. This is the history of the medals since George Washington's time to the present century.

ENCYCLOPEDIA OF ANIMAL CARE by Miller & West, the eighth edition. This book has been modelled upon the plan and general design of Black's Medical Dictionary, in the hope that it may fill a similar position for those who own, or have under their care or charge, domesticated animals.

STOCK CAR RACING by Robert B. Jackson. This book reports on the Grand National Competition. This is a young peoples book, but will be interesting to adults too.

FOLKSONGS AND FOLKSONGS OF AMERICA by Ray M. Lawless. This volume is a basic reference work for the layman as well as the professional musician. It is a handbook of biography, bibliography, and discography.

NATIONAL ANTHEMS OF THE WORLD edited by Martin Shaw and Henry Coleman.

TALES OUT OF OREGON by Ralph Friedberg. This book is different - off-beat history comprised of four sections.

Good 'Guys' Make Driving Mistakes Too

His car is in good shape. He is not a "road hog", a "squirrel", a speeder. He is not a drunk. He is one of the "good guys" . . . like you and me. But his thoughts must be running something like this:

"Driving conditions that night were ideal . . . no rain or fog, visibility good. As I drove along the county road approaching the state highway intersection, I saw the blinking red light that called for a stop. My speed was moderate; the road surface dry. I know I could stop. . . knew I SHOULD stop. But I DIDN'T STOP . . . just slowed down! I ask myself, "Why didn't I stop?" And I tell myself, "I suppose I'll never really know. I almost stopped. I DON'T KNOW why I just slowed down. I DO know that one young man is dead, and his kid brother is in a hospital with a broken leg. It happened because I DID NOT STOP!"

Bad dream? No, a real happening . . . on a typical road on a typical night in a typical county in Oregon.

With you, staff members of the Oregon Traffic Safety Commission heard the radio reports and read the newspaper accounts of the accident. . . . motorcycle carrying two youths struck a car at a rural intersection . . . both cyclists wearing protective headgear. . . driver of the car charged by deputies with failure to stop at a stop sign."

With you, the Commission is wondering what can be done about this kind of carnage. Highway engineers are receiving well-earned awards for building safer roads and freeways; auto manufacturers have spent millions on safety research with commendable result; motorists are buckling up their seat belts and shoulder harnesses and attending Defensive Driving classes . . . to mention only a few of the active traffic safety measures. We have stiff penalties for drunken drivers.

The laws of the land deal harshly, and often effectively, with the "bad guys" on our highways. What in the world are we going to do about the "good guys" who "fail to obey?"

Oregon's farmers, according to the Agri-Business Council, own over 160,000 automobiles, trucks and tractors. These farmers spend nearly $20 million a year for fuel, an important factor in the state's economy.

WORK SMARTER - NOT HARDER

DEMONS OR HELPERS -- that's what household cleaning products may be. These cleaners could be potential poisoners depending on how they are stored and used, especially if there is a small child in the house.

To protect your family, store household chemicals such as floor wax, metal polish and disinfectants separately from food and where children can't reach them. After using them, be sure to return them immediately to their safe storage cabinet.

Store in original containers. It's easy to mistake a product for something else if stored in another container.

Dispose of products in defaced or unlabeled bottles or cans. The directions on the label are important for correct usage and also list antidotes in case of accidental poisoning. Flush such products down the drain so there can be no mistake about what happens to them.

52,200 were killed and 4,200,000 were injured in motor vehicle accidents in 1967.

Fastest financing action in Oregon

We know your crops can't wait for a loan committee decision.

Say you apply for a crop or equipment loan tomorrow. The last thing we'll let you do is wait around until some committee approves it. It can't happen here because agricultural loan committees do not exist at First National.

Your branch manager generally approves your loan right in his own office. On loans requiring joint decisions within the bank, approval is most often made on the telephone to save time. First National offers this swift loan service because we know Oregon crops, livestock and equipment needs. We respect your time.
