What makes a fire so pleasant is, I think, that it is a live thing in a dead room.

-SYDNEY SMITH

Wonder what Sydney Smith would think of flameless heat? Live heat does make a difference. In fact, the intense blue flame of natural gas is one of the vital elements of

Quality Heat

Let's talk about fireplaces, as Rev. Smith was. There isn't much that flameless heat or your favorite oil dealer can do for a fireplace. But gas is a natural. Gas logs are so realistic you'll wonder why you ever suffered the bother and untidiness of a wood fire, or tolerated its extremely high cost. You think and believe wood when you gaze contentedly into a fireplace equipped with gas-fired logs. There's no fuss-no muss. It's another form of Quality Heat . . . and it's a gift to the home that will endure.

Some electric utilities will pay you as much as $100 if you will convert to electric heat. Have you ever wondered why? How about a nice red flameless light bulb for your fireplace?
