Western Farmers Association Completes Fertilizer Plant

A new-type bulk dry fertilizer plant just completed at Western Farmers Association's recently acquired facilities in Ontario, Oregon brings expanded WFA services to farmers in this important agricultural area, announces Dewey Servatius, local manager.

The plant will provide a complete line of bulk dry simple and mixed fertilizers. It will also make available custom applications of fertilizers with a "swamp buggy" and Barber spreader truck, and custom formulation of fertilizers with minor elements. Equipment has likewise been provided for using the newly developed process of impregnating certain pesticides into fertilizers before spreading.

Soil sampling assistance and a complete line of agricultural control chemicals will be additional services from the new facility, Servatius said.

"This fertilizer installation is one of several new units of eastern Oregon and southern Idaho," explains Dale Smith, general manager at Seattle. "These additions are largely to help provide a full line of production - marketing services to members of Idaho Potato Growers which merged into WFA last summer, and to other farmers in these productive agricultural districts."

The Ontario fertilizer plant augments the feed mill and grain handling services made possible through WFA's purchase of the Colorado Milling and Elevator Company facilities when they discontinued their formula feed business in Ontario some months ago.

Some men remind us of blisters. They don't show up until the work is done.
