emphasize -- trade in agricultural products," Shuman said. "Through reduction of tariff and non-tariff restrictions, U.S. farmers must achieve competitive pricing in the world markets on an equitable basis."

The farm leader also pointed out that Farm Bureau opposes any attempt to set agricultural trade apart from industrial trade and to allocate international agricultural markets through the use of international commodity agreements.

In regard to protectionist trade policies, Shuman said "our foreign customers must not be denied the opportunity to earn dollars to pay for our products or be provoked into retaliatory restrictions. Agriculture has far more to gain from trade expansion than from protectionism."

However, in cases where dumping or unfair trade practices jeopardize U.S. agricultural or industrial products, Shuman said that Farm Bureau policy calls for a new commission on trade and tariffs with power to act against such practices.

Agriculture, because of its important role in foreign trade, should be represented on such a commission, he said.

FOREIGN AID

In the area of U.S. aid to less developed countries, Shuman suggested a four-point program to strengthen the economies of such countries so they can become participants in world trade.

The program would include: (1) emphasis on technical assistance, including agricultural, to help the underdeveloped nations to help themselves; (2) loans on a sound commercial basis where there is expectation of repayments; (3) military assistance to nations demonstrating a strong will to maintain freedom and independence; (4) food aid to strengthen permanently the economies of the recipient country. Assistance programs should engender respect for the U.S. and they should provide incentives for the private ownership of property.

On domestic issues, Shuman said that continuing inflation is one of the greatest obstacles to achieving a favorable economic climate necessary to the growth of American enterprise -- agricultural and non-agricultural.

"There can be no doubt that the primary cause of our current inflation is deficit government spending," Shuman said. "The principal responsibility for bringing government expenditures into balance with receipts rests upon the Congress."

"It is high time that the members of Congress realize that the irresponsible domestic spending spree which they have been promoting by their liberal appropriations for everything from urban housing to limestone subsidy payments for farmers has brought this nation to the brink of financial disaster. The new Congress can balance the federal budget and it should cut back on spending until this is accomplished."

FARM UNION FIGHT

Shuman also warned that farmers can expect an intensified campaign in 1969 for the compulsory unionization of farm workers as exemplified in the current boycott of California table grapes by a union that represents less than 2 percent of the state's farm workers.

"Unable to persuade pickers of California table grapes to join their union after four years of harassment, the leaders have resorted to the boycott weapon in an attempt to force grape growers to sign their workers into the union."

"Farm Bureau is recommending national legislation to prohibit compulsory unionism. Until such legislation is enacted, it supports retention of Section 14 (b) of the Taft-Hartley Act," Shuman said.

EXPERT LISTS PLUS, MINUS FEATURES OF CREDIT CARDS

Are you undecided about using that new credit card that came in the mail?

If so, you may want to obtain a copy of a fact sheet called "Credit Cards -- 30 Days to Reality," issued by the Co-operative Extension Service at Oregon State University.

Mrs. Alberta B. Johnston, OSU Extension home management specialist, points out in the leaflet that a credit card can do almost anything that money can do -- and some things it cannot do. These include buying something now and paying for it with money you expect to earn in the future.

When families make their decisions about the use of credit cards, both the advantages and disadvantages of using them should be considered, Mrs. Johnston says. In favor of credit cards are these factors:

They eliminate the need for carrying a lot of cash when shopping or traveling.

They are convenient. Use of a credit card may mean writing one large check rather than a number of smaller ones at the end of the month.

Credit cards allow the consumer to take advantage of sales, or make necessary purchases when short of cash.

If a product is not satisfactory, it might be easier to return or exchange if it has been charged rather than paid for.

Among possible disadvantages of credit cards listed by the family finance specialist are these:

Credit cards can be lost or stolen. If misused by someone else, considerable loss might result.

If revolving credit is used, the consumer will pay more for items purchased. The service of providing credit adds to the merchant's cost of doing business, and is likely to be passed on to the customer.

Surveys show that credit card customers spend more and purchase more expensive items than do cash customers. The credit card may tempt the consumer to overspend.

Included in the fact sheet is an explanation of some of the legal responsibilities of the credit card user, and questions to be answered before using the card to be sure terms on which payment must be made are fully understood.

Copies of the fact sheet, FS148, are available by writing or calling the County Extension office.
