KRAZY DAY COMING SEPT. 20; FEATURES SALES-PRIZES-FUN

Nyssa's tenth annual 'KRAZY DAY' celebration is set for next week, and according to Chairman Fred Bracken, it appears it will be the best yet.

It is already the biggest single event staged each year, other than Christmas, and has been so well received that practically every merchant in town participates.

The Journal will again blanket the area with a special edition, carrying the merchants' ads, a list of the activities planned for the 'big' day - Saturday, together with comical stories, cartoons and pictures of local people who are usually found in a Journal 'Krazy Day' paper.

The regular section will carry the national and regional ads of those who choose to remain 'sane'. The colored section will contain the ads of those who desire to become 'nutty' for the event. These ads will be as K-R-A-Z-Y as the merchants desire - wording, spelling arrangement and attention compellers.

Each copy of the Journal will be numbered and the lucky number holders will be eligible for hundreds of prizes at ridiculous prices, or in many cases 'free'.

PARADE PLANNED

There will be a parade in the afternoon with men, women, children, dogs (and maybe some other animals) in the procession. It will be led by members of the Nyssa high school band, and they will not be in their regular dress uniforms.

Prizes will be awarded to the 'CRAZIEST' dressed man, woman, child and dog. So everyone should be planning their garb for next week.

But readers are urged to watch the Journal next week for all the details, and asked to keep the colored sections for lucky numbers, as well as checking the once-a-year bargains offered by Nyssa firms.

Plan to DRESS CRAZY, HAVE FUN, AND SEE THAT ALL VISITORS SHARE IT WITH YOU!!!

ULLMAN PRESSES FOR EARLY ACTION ON CATTLE DEATHS

Congressman Al Ullman recently pressed the United States Interior Department for an early finding on the federal government's responsibility in the Vale Grazing District disaster.

About 300 head of livestock were lost for lack of water in eastern Oregon last month when pumping facilities operated by the Bureau of Land Management broke down. In a telegram to Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel, Ullman said,

"If, as it appears, it is determined that responsibility rests with the government then I strongly urge prompt and full compensation be made to the owners of the livestock." Ullman added, "Under those circumstances full payment for damages is essential both as a matter of legal and moral equity and as assurance that irreparable damage not be done to the spirit of cooperation that has epitomized the development of the pace setting Vale Grazing Project."

The Bureau of Land Management has acknowledged responsibility for the inspection, surveillance and maintenance of the pumping equipment, Ullman observed. Interior's present investigation "of the causes and the circumstances surrounding the death of the livestock should be continued and a finding made as soon as possible," he said.

PAINTING DISPLAY AT NYSSA LIBRARY

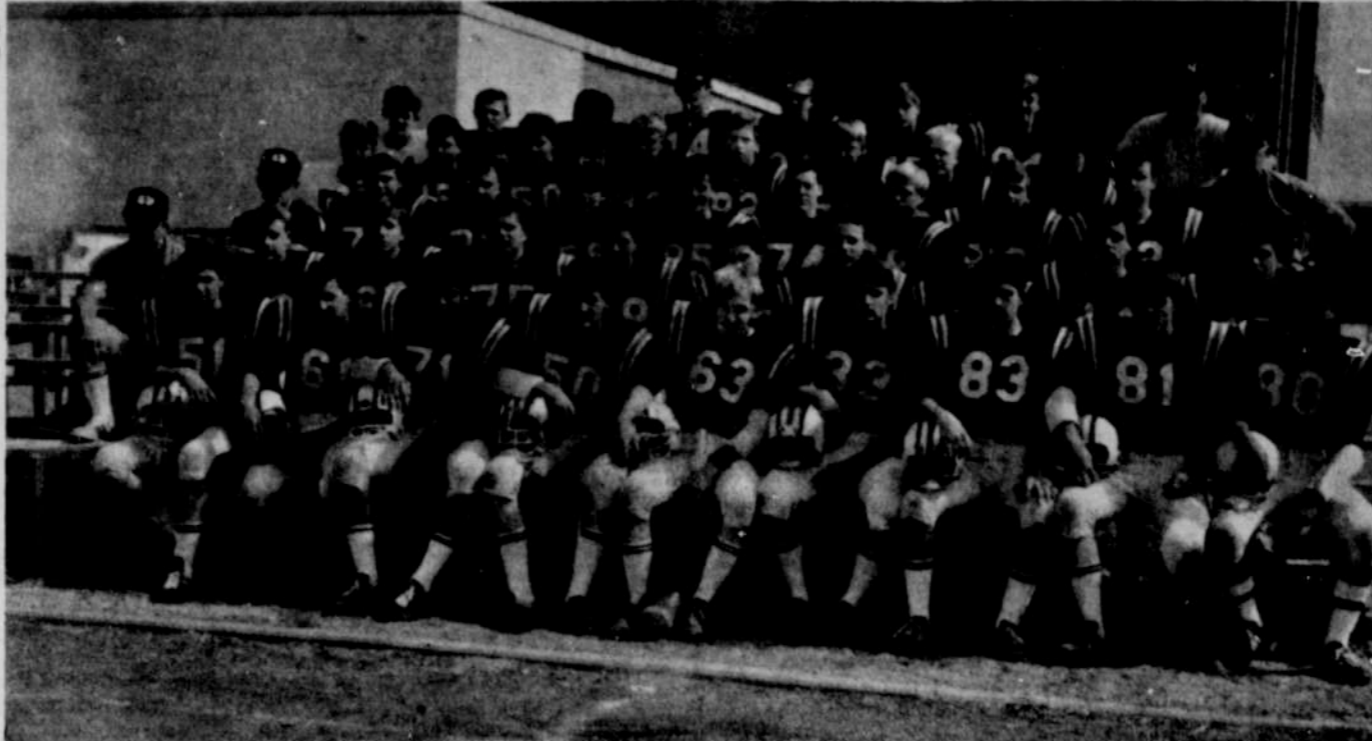

Three very unusual paintings are currently on display at the Nyssa public library. All are the work of Ron Strasser, a local young artist. Featured during September is a unique religious representation entitled "Christ on the Cross." The display also includes a modernistic landscape called "Orchard" and a picture captioned "The Studio."

Strasser was graduated from Nyssa high school in 1967 and attended Treasure Valley Community college. This fall he will enter Oregon State university at Corvallis as a junior, majoring in art. After earning a master's degree, Strasser plans to teach art.

Ron's parents are Norman and Pearle Strasser of Nyssa.

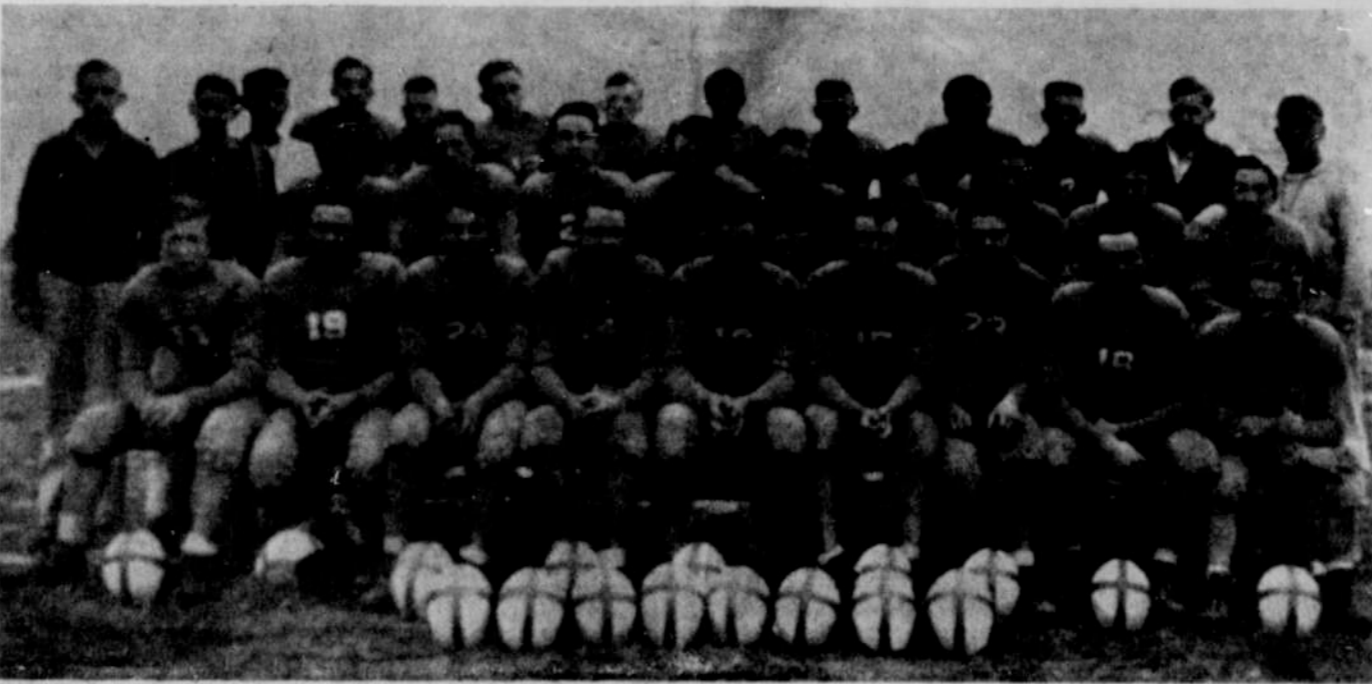

CORRECTION

The Journal was in error last week in reporting that the Nyssa City Dump would be closed on September 20. It should have been Sept. 30 as there will be no delay in the use of the new dump site on Lytle Boulevard as of October 1.

NYSSA HIGH BEATS VALE IN FOOTBALL

Ends 26 Year "Drouth"

The head for this story may appear to be too large! This page may be too heavy on the right! There may be those who think a football game doesn't merit front page coverage! But who the heck cares--NYSSA DID BEAT VALE ON THE GRID--IRON FRIDAY NIGHT-- and for the first time in 26 years!

Vale has been a power in area and state football for years. It is not known if they are much weaker than common, the local team much better than usual, or a combination of both. Coach Harry McGinley is very reticent about the matter and summed it up by saying, "Nyssa boys have a good spirit and it was a team effort."

It was the opening game for both Nyssa and Vale. Neither could score during the first three quarters. But in the fourth Dave Manley fired a 25 yard pass to David Wilson for a six pointer. He then fired one to Steve Ross for two points. Nyssa leads 8-0.

Minutes later Keith Oldemeyer broke loose for 40 yards and another 6 point tally. A pass try for conversion failed and the game ended 14-0. Vale failed to penetrate Nyssa's 30 yard line.

To many Nyssa fans it is a successful season no matter what the team does the rest of the season.

classmates as being Harold Wilson, now of Homedale. Jay Bybee scored the extra point and the quarterback for the team was Clayton Morgan (now Dr. Moran of Boise.)

INCOMPLETE SCHEDULE

Nyssa had only three conference games completed (two wins and a tie with Weiser) when a two week halt was called for high school students to help harvest the beets and potatoes. This was during World War II, help was scarce and there was very little mechanical harvesting. All other conference teams completed the season with six games played. It is not known who was awarded the championship but it was possibly Vale whose record was marred only by the loss to Nyssa and one tie.

OWYHEE AREA CATTLE TOLL RISES TO 285

WIN 26 YEARS AGO

Not too many details are available for the game 26 years ago when Nyssa had won last. The account as listed in the bound files of the Bulldog is as follows:

"Defeating the Vale Vikings 13-7 on their own field October 14, the Nyssa Bulldogs ended this year's season.

"The first quarter started smoothly and ended scoreless. Starting to roll in the second quarter, the Vikings threw a pass which was called back because of interference to the receiver, which put the ball on our 18 yard line.

"Just before the half, Irwin, the star player of the Vikings hit the line to go over for a touchdown. They also converted for the extra point.

The Bulldogs came back on the field set for victory and our passing started to click with Wilson on the receiving end. After the touchdown the point was not converted.

A Bulldog punt put the Vikings on our four yard line where they were held. Steinke took the ball on a reverse and made the 50 yard line. From there Wilson took a pass to the 35 yard line. Wilson then ran the next score with a pass with Bybee converting the point."

(Ed's note: The Wilson mentioned as doing the scoring has been identified by some of his

The toll of cattle which died from thirst on the Owyhee Butte seeding in the Vale district of the Bureau of Land Management since Aug. 22 has risen to 285, and officials are continuing their investigation into events leading up to the tragedy.

District Manager Maxwell T. Lieurance said an investigation team from the state office in Portland completed a fact-finding mission Friday. Statements have been gathered from all BLM employees involved in many way with the management of the 10,000-acre Owyhee seeding.

These include professional managers, maintenance men, aerial inspection contractors and anyone else on the scene at the time the cattle were found dying from lack of water. The lack of water has been attributed to two successive malfunctions of a huge water system in the seeding. Piecing together and checking all information is expected to take several weeks.

The district manager said the next move will be up to the five ranchers who lost animals in the BLM seeding. They are Fred Eiguren, Domingo Urquiga, Calvin Stitzel, Glen Caywood and Miller Bros.

"If the ranchers file a claim against the BLM it must be shown what damages each rancher incurred and relate them to alleged negligence or responsibility of BLM," Lieurance said.

FIRST NATIONAL MAKES FOOTBALL FILMS AVAILABLE

For the fifth consecutive year, First National Bank of Oregon has made prints available of half-hour motion pictures on the National Football League for showing at meetings of local organizations.

Available this year through the bank's 118 statewide offices is a new film, "NFL Gamebreakers," which captures the excitement, glamour, emotions and dramatics of professional football.

Films offered by First National Bank in 1965, 1966, 1967 and 1968 are "How To Watch Pro Football," "The Keys of Pro Football," "They Call It Pro Football" and "NFL Highlights of 1967."

Orders for all five of the colorful football films are now being accepted at First National branches.

Due to the previous popularity of the NFL films and the fact that the bank has a limited number of prints, groups wishing to see the motion pictures should get their requests in as far in advance as possible.

Onion, Spud Shipments Higher Than In 1968

Onions are being shipped at a steady pace from Malheur County, Oregon and Southwestern Idaho reports Warren Henninger, County Extension Agent. The Idaho-Oregon Onion Committee's records ending Aug. 31 show total onion shipments of 400 carlots from this district.

This compares to 101 carlots at this same time last year and 114 carlots at this same time in 1967. As of August 31 the Average Daily Carlot Movement was 38.7 cars of onions. This is the 2nd largest daily carlot movement that the Idaho-Oregon industry has faced upon entering a market season.

Potato shipments as of August 31 were 816 carlots compared to 809 carlots up to this date in 1968. Potato shipments will decrease as most shippers concentrate on onion shipments.

NYSSA HIGH SCHOOL'S NEW VARSITY cheerleaders for 1969-70. They are (l to r) Nancy Jackson, Karen Zerbel, Susan Kouns, Mardi Tensen and Pat McGinley. Elected last spring, these five girls attended the August 10-14 National Cheerleader Association's clinic at Utah State university in Logan. They were the only Oregon girls who attended this particular clinic. Competing against squads from Utah, Idaho, Nevada and Wyoming, the Nyssa Varsity cheerleaders captured two excellent ribbons. Aside from leading cheers at the games, other duties of the Varsity squad include planning pep rallies, homecoming festivities and supporting all school functions. - NHS photo.
