The display, worth a quarter of a million dollars, was made possible by the Evyan Perfume company. Gowns shown were from the time of Mary Todd Lincoln to the present Mrs. Pat Nixon.

Konrad Murray, display director of the Bon Marche, took the group on a conducted tour of the showing. He explained the fashion design of the period of the gown represented. Also, the students were allowed to handle the fabric of the gowns, study the underconstruction, see the inside seam finishes, along with fashion and decorative details.

Those attending gained an appreciation of the product, as well as the details necessary for underconstruction of the gown to produce the "special fashion look" of the period it represented.

The price of developing the replicas was also overwhelming. Mrs. Truman's and Mrs. McKinley's gowns being most costly. Each dress cost $8,000.00 to reproduce.
