Mrs. Tom Jones Reports On Trip Back East

BY ELLEN JONES

Going to Chicago on the Union Pacific streamliner is a real pleasure. The train left Nyssa about 11. The night was spent in a roomette which has all the comforts of home, including a door which could be locked. The dinner service and food was good.

It was fun to watch for antelope from the Dome-liner. Wyoming seems to be well supplied with antelope. From the number of oil rigs bobbing up and down, one would think that all of western Nebraska had an underground lake of oil.

The farm land in Iowa looks very similar to farm land here. Tall corn, hay, hogs, cattle seem to be on every farm. I had an opportunity to visit a farm near Clinton and it appeared to be just like our local farms except for the fact that they do not irrigate. They also store everything in enormous barns.

Coming into Chicago was a little different on this trip because they are tearing down the Union depot, second largest in the world. It wasn't as confusing as I had expected. There are no redcaps and passengers handle their own baggage. It works fine if you can get a cart. Taxi service is good. Getting checked in at the hotel is always exciting. It isn't long until other members arrived and happy reunions were in order at the Sunday afternoon tea.

There were approximately 350 graphoanalysts at the Pick-Congress hotel this year. Regular classes were conducted each day. Evening activities included the annual night of sightseeing on Lake Michigan and dinner at Pioneer Court followed by a talent show. That Thursday evening we attended a banquet with Sidney J. Harris, Chicago newspaper columnist, as principal speaker.

One of the most interesting general assemblies at this year's convention was a simulated court trial involving questioned documents, with Prof. Andre Moenssens of Chicago's Kent College of law, acting as opposition counsel, Ralph May, Denver lawyer, attorney presenting the Graphoanalysis expert witness, Phil Vivian, staff, and Daniel Van derwerf Jr., Court reporter for 20th Michigan Judicial District, as presiding judge. The audience acted as the jury.

Friday afternoon Bob Jones came to take me to their home present the same, duly verified as required by law, to the undersigned at the law offices of Henigson, Stunz and Fonda, Nyssa, Oregon, within six months from the date thereof.

Howard Bair, Executor of the Estate of Edith C. Elgan, Deceased.

in Clinton, Iowa for a short visit. Clinton is on the west bank of the Mississippi river. The mighty Mississippi certainly makes an impression on an inhabitant of a high volcanic country such as Malheur county. Even as late as July 25, the back water was inland for miles and miles. At Savanna, where the train slows to cross the river from Iowa to Illinois, the passengers could see the extremely muddy water lapping around the house boats and covering fields of corn. Where the water had receded the surface of the ground was dry and beginning to crack. The corn was yellow and stunted.

A view of the river from the heights of Mississippi Park was beautiful. The river seems to extend miles and miles in width. It is interesting to watch the traffic on the river at Clinton where long barges carrying coal, machinery, etc. were coming and going day and night. On the way to Des Moines where I visited my cousin, Irene Earl, Bob pointed out the new home of a friend who had built a dike all around it to keep out the flood water, only to have a severe thunder storm to come up and fill the dike full. Talk about being between the devil and the deep blue sea!

Des Moines is an interesting city of over 208,000 population. It ranks among the leading publishing centers of the U.S. because of the volume of printed matter produced by the 50 insurance firms and 60 magazines published there. Des Moines is a french word and means The Monks. It was named after the Trappist Missionaries in the early 1800's.

I could see why the people of Nebraska loved their state. The trees that were planted during the dust bowl days are big and beautiful groves now. It was evening as the bus came west thru Omaha and I have never seen a more beautiful sunset. The Missouri river separates Omaha from Council Bluffs which was a wagon train provision center at about 1846.

The bus arrived in Holyoke, Colo., at 6 a.m. and the bus driver startled everyone with a loud and cheery: "AWAKE, AWAKE, THE DAWN DOETH BREAK." "This is your breakfast stop."

It is always exciting to arrive in Denver and to visit with my sister-in-law, Mollie Trimble in Broomfield. This year my sister and I visited our old home in Georgetown. While there we visited with a lifetime friend Polly Chandler, who will soon have a story entitled "The Apricot Tree" in the Woman's Day.

One of the nicest things about a trip is the return home to the peace and quiet of Nyssa. I doubt if we really appreciate the many wonderful blessings we have here.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Carpenter and Charles of Payette were Sept. 21 dinner guests of her sister, Mr. and Mrs. T.H. Eldredge.

HOME BUILDERS HEAD SEES LITTLE RELIEF IN BUILDING COSTS

Bill Lamb, President of the Oregon State Home Builders Association, on returning from a regional conference on home building in Grants Pass, held out little hope to home buyers that housing costs could be reduced.

Lamb, after discussing housing with bankers, savings and loan officials, and with the Vice President of the National Association of Home Builders, pointed out that housing will be no cheaper next year. And, not only will housing be expensive, but apartments will be more difficult to obtain also.

"Our current crisis is simply money," Lamb said. "Interest rates are high, but money is scarce at any interest rate. We in the home building industry depend on the 3-M's: Money, material and manpower. Last spring, material, specifically lumber, was priced beyond all reason; today, it is money, and if we solved both of these problems, we would face a shortage of skilled craftsmen because of a limited apprenticeship program."

"The simple result," Lamb concluded, "is that the cost of housing to the American public is going to increase rather than decrease."

"In the low income housing field a simplification of obsolete codes could help. We are being 'coded to death,'" Lamb declared, "and a simplified, uniform building code, effective statewide, would be a major improvement."

Lamb said the Oregon State Mrs. C.A. Wernick, Mrs. John de Boer of Ontario, Mrs. Dickerson, Weiser and Mrs. John Harshbarger of Boise recently attended a Pythia state convention in Carson City, Nev. They also attended a Liberatee show. The women were gone from Sept. 18 to Sept. 21.
