Vice President Agnew

As we salute the men and women who have served their country in the armed forces on this Veteran's Day, we must face up to another "Moratorium Day", November 15.

The first moratorium passed without bloodshed, thankfully, and the result seemed to crystallize the thinking of about 80% of this nation's citizens. Instead of an outpouring of people waving their fingers at the "V" and shouting peace slogans, the majority of Americans showed their good sense and confidence in our system of representative government by supporting President Nixon. The polls took a sharp turn upward in support of the president's foreign policy as people showed their distaste for attempted mob rule and street diplomacy. Even the recruiting stations recorded an increase in enlistees as a counter protest.

We previously expressed some doubts as to the character of some of the first moratorium leadership. Those people were amateurs compared to the bunch that is planning the march on Washington, Nov. 15. The latter are of the same stripe as those who ruined the Democratic Convention in Chicago, and even our most liberal congressmen now say that they want nothing to do with them.

Vice-president Agnew has expressed himself in a candid and forceful manner, and what he says is not a slip of the tongue, but a studied attempt to wake people up to the dangers of a takeover by dangerous demagogues. When he calls these people insurrectionists, he views them from a spot just below the presidency.

The liberal Eastern press will keep on Agnew's back, just like they have on President Nixon ever since he exposed Alger Hiss, but it is our observation that Agnew speaks for the vast, overwhelming majority of Americans. Columnist William S. White wrote that Agnew has "cut out for himself a role as the pre-eminent defender of the country's traditional values of patriotism and respect for lawfully constituted authority."

We know that our small voice won't cut much of a swath in the national scene, except that we echo the sentiments of almost every weekly newspaper on our exchange list, and according to the U. S. Press Association this feeling is widespread among the grassroots newspapers of America.

Anyway, it is our belief that nobody wants peace half as much as do the 27,000,000 American Veterans who have served their country. And none of us wants peace as much as do President Nixon and Vice-president Agnew, and after all they are the men who know what this situation is all about. More important, they are the "lawfully constituted authority" we elected to do something about it, and WE MUST SUPPORT THEM.

NAVY NEEDS EXPERIENCED MEN

The U. S. Navy is continually seeking qualified "ex" servicemen to man its many ships and stations. Previous military experience is desirable because it eliminates the need to provide a full basic training schedule. This elimination provides a savings in training time and expense. Two programs, Open Rate and Score, provide opportunities for ex-Navy men to re-enlist in the pay grade held when last discharged. Ex-servicemen of the other services will be considered for retention of pay grade held when last discharged if experience is in a required Navy specialty group. Qualified "ex" removers can be reached at the U. S. Navy Recruiting Branch Station, Post Office Building, Nampa, Idaho or Phone 466-8004. BE SOMETHING—GO NAVY.

Impala's hidden persuaders:

- ① 350-cu.-in. engine: A new more powerful standard 250-hp V8 makes the 1970 Impala move with all the more assurance. On good ol' regular gas.
- ② Anti-theft column lock: A locking system is built right into the steering column. When you take your key with you, you lock not only your ignition but your steering wheel as well.
- ③ Aluminized exhaust system: It simply means that your original muffler, tailpipe and exhaust are going to last longer than you'd probably expect them to. Fair enough?
- ④ Side guard beams: They look like highway guard rails, and they're built into both sides of the car for extra protection in case of impact. Not too many cars have them.
- ⑤ Inner fenders: Up inside every fender to protect against slush and mud and help keep your Impala looking young.
- ⑥ Flush and dry: We build the car so that rain and wash water can run down through the inside of the rocker panels, then out. Air follows to do the drying.
- ⑦ Full Coil suspension: Huge coil springs at all four wheels are four big reasons why a Chevrolet Impala rides smoother and quieter than a low-priced car has any right to.
