Computers are for counting.

People are for counting on.

A great combination working for you at Union Pacific.

It's not what computers do, but what people do with them.

Our people are noted for their computer sense. That's how they line up facilities so quickly, how they sort, switch, weigh and couple thousands of cars on the move, how they whisk your freight smoothly into the traffic flow. Union Pacific people use computers to spot trouble before it happens, to watch your shipment as it speeds along, to flash information back, if needed.

To do the best job, we're spending millions every year on computers, research, new equipment and facilities. But the value of the people who run them can't be computed. In customer service, they're priceless.
