Nyssa Treatment Plant

Next Tuesday the registered voters who live in the City of Nyssa will vote on the proposed expansion of the city sewage treatment plant. Approval of the project will give Nyssa a secondary plant meeting of all of the requirements of the State of Oregon and Federal Government.

In these days when stream pollution is of such concern to all states and communities, it certainly puts the burden on all of us to be sure that we are not adding our wastes to one of our greatest resources, the Snake River.

Industry, for years one of the worst offenders in stream pollution, is starting to recognize its responsibility. Our Amalgamated factory installed settling ponds to filter out the wastes from their operation. Wednesday the Ore-Ida factory at Ontario put into operation a new $500,000 treatment plant to control their industrial waste.

All up and down the Snake River cities and industry are meeting this responsibility, and it is good that our city council is providing a plan to help us meet ours.

City Manager Fred Koch says that the government will pay between $70,000 and $100,000 of the cost of this improvement. This is a valid federal expenditure, as stream pollution extends past city boundaries and state lines. Koch did the engineering and design on the plant expansion, and this is a savings to the city residents. All in all it seems to be an economical operation, and estimates place the repayment cost per taxing unit at only about $1.00 for each $1,000 valuation per year.

Paying for waste disposal has never been real popular. Nevertheless, our people recognize the necessity of insuring that our rivers and streams stay clean and useful. Federal and state agencies do have the authority to demand that wastes discharged into streams are of a certain standard, and approval of the bond issue will allow the Nyssa treatment plant to meet those standards.

Let's get out and vote next Tuesday. We think it will be to the best interest of our community if we vote to support this necessary improvement.

In the afternoon he will meet with the men of the local church to help lay plans for a building program.
