

Nyssa School Girls Report

Logan Workshop Activities

By Ruth McGinley

An article in last week's issue of this paper on the cheerleading and drill-team clinic held recently in Logan, Utah, brought about a casual interview with the girls who attended from Nyssa.

The idea was to get their reaction to the clinic and to see if they felt it was worth the time, effort and work they had to do, to enable them to attend.

Each girl was asked to give a spontaneous answer to the question, "What did you think about the clinic?" Naturally, each girl had a different reaction but all had a real honest feeling of teamwork.

The overall feeling expressed by the girls was that, this not only makes a better cheerleading squad, but also a better school feeling; for many times, one group of students, who are enthusiastic and full of real loyalty to a school, influences the school far more than even they can realize at the time.

Drill - team captain Janice Church said, "The drill team camp was a lot of fun. There was so much to learn and do. We learned between five and six new routines and how to give the commands for close-order drills. Everyone got to know lots of new people and had a great time. We got ideas for outfits and how to take care of the problems that come up. The instructors were really good and helped all of us."

Nancy Jackson and Patty McGinley attended the clinic for the second year, and both said they felt the spirit shown this year was terrific. Bob Shields, head director, told this year's group that of the 190 clinics held this year, this group was the most spontaneous and high-spirited.

Patty's remarks were, "The cheerleading workshop was fun as well as educational. Our four-day stay on campus at Logan's 'Utah State University' was really jam-packed with lectures, tumbling and other cheerleading classes. Everyday, we would learn four to six yells, plus a number of chants, skits and pointers on being better cheerleaders and in directing the crowd.

All 5 cheerleaders and 1 drill captain stayed in rooms at Richard's hall. This way, we really got to know each other well and we shared out ideas in helping promote spirit in our school. The spirit and enthusiasm at this clinic was fabulous and we intend to bring this much spirit back home with us.

As cheerleaders, we feel we are sometimes shut out, and often, for our hard work, we go unthanked. At cheerleader's camp we gained more confidence in ourselves, we became determined to do our best, not only in just ourselves supporting our team, but more in controlling and directing the crowd and to be more sportsmanlike. Camp taught us that although cheerleaders seem to be insignificant, we serve a purpose for our community -- and this we take with great pride."

Nancy's comments were, "There are so many absolutely great things about a week at cheerleading school, but this year was really outstanding, maybe its because the four other cheerleaders were so much fun to be with or because the instructors made a lot of work into a lot of fun. Whatever the reasons, we all had a good time.

Every night after a day of classes each cheerleading squad was expected to perform in front of a group of judges and the rest of the cheerleaders. We were graded on our performance and shown our mistakes. We received a white ribbon for outstanding abilities the first night, an honorable mention, (not too good) the second night, and a white ribbon again the third night. On the fourth night we received a blue ribbon which signified superior in competition. I suppose it was because we put everything into it and made it fun with a lot of spirit on the side. I think we are all bringing back a lot of spirit. We want to do our part to keep the spirit of NHS alive!"

Lora Bair told us -- "We found out what spirit was and how to get it. We learned a lot of chants and yells to bring back. The food was great! We had a chance to participate with cheerleaders of other schools and we saw how important it was to work together and have the right spirit while doing a yell. We hope we can have all the spirit and enthusiasm at school that we saw there."

Nancy Bale liked meeting cheerleaders from some of the other areas. One of the things she enjoyed most was going to bed at the end of each day. She stated that it felt so good to be able to relax all of her sore muscles. The girls and sponsors went to the Lagoon in Salt Lake City on their return home and enjoyed that, despite the bruises and floor burns from the fun house. She said, "The other girls really made the trip a success. They are all great and I'm very glad I had the opportunity to make the trip with them."

This was Jan Saito's first clinic and she made the following statements: "I think that being a cheerleader is really a great honor and going to cheerleading school made it an even greater honor, besides giving us all a great time and fun experience. I think that probably the best part of the trip was getting to know the girls in our own group personally and working together as a team.

We had evaluation every night where we performed a yell that we learned that day, and also one of our own. This part of the day was probably the most valuable for it was here that we were tested on accuracy in the yell, poise, personality, and all around performance. Although I was always nervous during this part, it gradually became more fun and our squad did very well in my opinion.

The lecturers that we had were all very good and we picked up quite a few good ideas for pep assemblies, crowd control, and promoting spirit. The spirit of the people at the school was just terrific. I can't begin to describe the amount of enthusiasm there was during the camp. It was contagious!

The camp ended Thursday, after four days of hard work and lots of learning. Our advisor, Miss Reece, then took us all to Salt Lake City where we spent one night, went shopping in the morning and had fun.

There are lots and lots of things I could say about camp, but working with the girls from good 'Old Nyssa and getting to know them was the most rewarding thing that I received from it."

Employment Division Urge Youth To Stay In School

Administrator Ross Morgan, young people in every way possible to get the education that today that the Employment Division is cooperating with the best fits their aptitudes, and Governor's Youth Commission skills. If the young people need to stress the importance for part-time work to help them get young people to return to school their education, the Employment and stay in school this fall. Division wants to be of assistance.

Morgan said, "We in the Employment Division who see the enough the importance of staying results of young people dropping in school and getting a real ping out of school realize more career education."

It went up again in 1970. He said that there was a 81.5 percent "survival" rate of graduates in Oregon's high schools in the 1968-1969 school year and last year it was 81.2 percent. This rate is estimated by the Oregon Board of Education through information compiled regarding 18 graduating classes in Oregon high schools, 1952-1970.

Morgan said that the Employment Division is putting on an emphatic Stay - in - School and Back-to-School campaign this year. He added that the high school graduate will earn more than $85,000 more during his lifetime than the high school dropout.
