At least 28 employees of the Amalgamated Sugar company of Nyssa, will most likely be switching their long years of sugar-making "jargon" of "low raw" - "high raw" -- to that of -- "low score - high score" talk this processing season, the local union's public relation director Aldo P. Sarchiapone, Fruitland, predicted today.

Sarchiapone said the expected change in bull-session talk this winter is the result of a golf tournament held Friday, August 21, at the Ontario Municipal Golf course. The event, named Golferama by its originator, is the brainchild of E.R. Del Ricks, Ontario, local union president of the American Federation of Grain Millers of Nyssa.

As one of several golf-playing employees who enjoys playing the sport, Ricks thought other employees who have never played the game, or even held a club in their hands, may give golf a try if given the chance. So, with the help of Ernie Fisher, a fellow employee and golfer from the Parma area, the two programmed a nine-hole golfing tournament between golfers and non-golfers alike.

Ricks and Fisher asked all the known company golfers to pick a golf partner from a number of non-playing employees a few days before the game and by tee-off time Friday evening, 14 teams (28 players) had signed up to play. The participating teams, mostly from the Nyssa-Parma area were: Golfers -- Tom Church, Ernie Fisher, Cecil Fortin, Maurice Glover, Farrell Jones, Dez Jones, Rollo Kent, Solon Lewis, Ray Larson, Del Ricks, Garry Smith, Waynard Talbot, Mrs. Rosemary Zittercobb, and Mrs. Lois Miner; Non-Golfers -- Larry Rose, Ed Reeder, Glen Marcum, Ralph Young, Norbert Sarazin, Mural Lewis, Albert Hanson, E.L. "Red" McCrady, Everett Heldt, Paul Kunkel, Gerald Brown, Mark Moncur, Aldo P. Sarchiapone, and Gus Kunkel.

Trophies for first place winners were awarded following the match. A barbecued steak dinner prepared by Mark Hopkins, club manager and golf pro, proceeded the presentation of awards. The dinner, as well as golf fees, were paid for by each participating player.

Among those making the lowest scores were Garry Smith and Gerald Brown, with a low of 65, Tom Church and Larry Rose, a low of 75, and in thirdplace, Dez Jones and Mural Lewis, with a close 76.

A special trophy award was made to each of the two participating women players, Mrs. Zittercobb and Mrs. Miner, for their good sportsmanship, and for having the fortitude to stand up and compete with 26 men golfers.

Twin trophies were also presented to Cecil Fortin and Glen Marcum for being the most even-tempered team throughout the game... MAD all the way.

Del Ricks and Paul Kunkel each received an award for being the team most involved in their work and play all twisted up into it.

Presentation of other awards, and a showing of a movie film taken at the golf tournament by Del Ricks will be made at a special meeting in the very near future. Ricks said that plans for a future Golferama will also be discussed at this meeting, Sarchiapone concluded.

Game Commission Sets Bird Hunting Rules

The Oregon Game Commission Saturday, August 15, in Portland established liberal 1970 hunting seasons and bag limits for the taking of upland game birds and waterfowl. The liberal regulations were based on state and federal surveys which indicated a good crop of both upland and migratory birds.

Anticipating a fine crop of valley quail and chukar partridge as indicated by brood surveys recently completed, the Commission set a long season on these birds but held tight on ringneck pheasants which are expected to be in relatively short supply this fall. Brood surveys showed improved pheasant production in most of eastern Oregon but a slight decline in Willamette Valley areas.

Also anticipating excellent waterfowl flights this fall, the Commission set the longest season possible within the allowable limits of the federal waterfowl framework and increased the bag limit on ducks.

The longest hunting season on the calendar is for chukar and Hungarian partridge, October 3 through January 24. Bag limit on partridge, in the aggregate, is 8 birds per day, 16 in possession.

Pheasant and quail hunting gets underway at 8 a.m., October 17 and runs through November 22. In eastern Oregon only, the quail season extends through January 24 along with that for chukars and Huns. Bag limit for pheasants remains identical to last year, 3 cocks daily, 9 in possession in eastern Oregon (except Klamath County) and 2 cocks daily, 4 in possession in western Oregon and Klamath County. Quail bag limit is set at 10 per day, 20 in possession in eastern Oregon and 5 per day, 10 in possession in western Oregon.

The Commission also established a five-day general turkey season November 21 through 25. Open area includes that portion of the state east of the Cascade summit and north of U.S. Highway 26. Bag limit is one turkey for the season.

Silver gray squirrels may be hunted September 1 through October 25 in southwestern Oregon and Hood River and Wasco counties. There is no closed season in northwestern Oregon and no limit on the number of squirrels that may be taken.

Waterfowl hunters have a long season from October 10 through January 10. The season on ducks and geese extends through January 24 in Wasco, Sherman, Gilliam, Morrow, and Umatilla counties.

The extension on ducks also includes Baker, Malheur, Union, and Wallowa counties.

Bag limit on ducks is increased by one bird from last year, 6 daily, 12 in possession. In the above Columbia Basin counties the daily bag is 7 ducks and 14 in possession. Bag limit on geese remains the same as last year, 3 daily, 6 in possession. Daily bag limit on geese may be increased to 6 providing 3 or more are snow geese. Possession limit remains at 6 geese.

The black brant season extends from November 21 through February 21 and the season for snipe October 10 through December 13. Bag limit is 4 daily, 8 in possession for brant and 8 daily, 16 in possession for snipe.

MARY KAY SCHOOL STARTS NEXT WEEK

Registration for all trainable exceptional youngsters in this Treasure Valley area will be held Tuesday morning, September 1 between the hours of 9:00 and 12:00 a.m. at the Mary Kay School in Ontario. The Mary Kay School is held in the educational building directly behind the Blessed Sacrament Church, under the auspices of the Treasure Valley Association for Handicapped and Retarded Children, Inc.

Mrs. Leon Lassley is returning to the school as teacher. She requests that parents bring medical records or other information pertinent to your child's record of immunizations and illnesses since a form similar to the goldenrod sheets will need to be filled out during registration.

Regular classes will be held September 2, 9:00 to 2:30. Students will need a sack lunch since hot lunches will not be available at the school.

Tax Saving Publications

Many businessmen lose thousands of dollars in overpayment of taxes, Vic Goertzen, Management Specialist with the Small Business Administration, said today.

Poor and inadequate records result in costly errors of both under and overpayment of taxes, with mistakes running into thousands of dollars for many firms, he related.

For example, one small firm overpaid nearly $6,000 because $30,000 in installment sales were reported as income, even though the money would not be earned for two to three years.

Guidance in better tax reporting is contained in a new free publication of SBA, "Getting the Facts for Income Tax Reporting". The pamphlet lists basic necessary records, techniques for interpretation and the documentation for support of tax returns.

Another free publication, "Steps in Meeting Your Tax Obligations", outlines the relationship of various incomes to tax obligations. It points out, Goertzen explains, the various kinds of business taxes and the controls businessmen should have to prevent error and overpayment.

Both publications are available free from the Small Business Administration, 216 North Eighth, Box 2618, Boise, Idaho.
