

KRAZEE CILLY KRAZE BITS

The day before a big college game a bombshell burst on the coach with the dean's announcement that the star player had been disqualified. The coach hurried to the dean to ask why.

The dean said, "We caught him cheating yesterday."

"I don't believe my player would cheat," the coach blustered. "What evidence do you have?"

"The star athlete sat right across from the star student. When their exam papers were compared, it was found the two were identical on the first nine questions."

"But," said the coach, "that doesn't prove anything. Maybe the player crammed."

"I can answer that best," said the dean, "by the manner in which they replied to the last question. The A student wrote: 'I don't know.' The player wrote: 'I don't know either.'"

A hotel desk clerk received a long distance call about an overnight reservation.

"Do you want a room with a tub or a shower?" the clerk asked.

"What's the difference?" the caller replied.

"Well," came the patient response, "with a tub you sit down."

One girl to another: "Well, it's true we are having a little disagreement. I want a big church wedding and he wants to break off the engagement."

A talkative worker spent most of his time bemoaning the fact that fortune seemed to smile on everybody but him. When another employee with less seniority was promoted, he complained: "It's the same old story. The other guys get all the breaks. When is my ship ever going to come in?"

"Perhaps," suggested a fellow worker, "it will when you learn that steam has replaced wind."

MacSweeney, the carpenter, had just been granted another raise in pay, but when his brother from the country asked him how he was getting along, he sighed and sadly shook his head.

"But you've got a good job, haven't you?" said the brother.

"One of the best," replied MacSweeney.

"What's the trouble, then?"

"Wages—that's the trouble."

"But, I thought you just had a big raise in pay."

"By golly, that's just what's bothering me. My wages are so daddled high now I can't ever afford to take a day off."

"I admit that women are more vain of their personal appearance than men," confessed the lady lecturer. "Why at this moment the handsomest man in my audience has his necktie knot pulled around under his collar."

Whereupon forty-eight masculine hands furtively reached up and adjusted supposedly askew neckwear!

In an overcrowded classroom, a teacher's morning attendance report to her principal started off with: "Help! They're all here!"

An old man walked into the police station and asked the sergeant, "Can you tell me who my landlord is?"

"Why, he's the man you pay your rent to," answered the man at the desk.

"The old man shook his head and said, 'I don't pay rent. About nine years ago I found me this house, moved in, and I been living there ever since.'"

"Then why worry?" said the sergeant. "You have no complaint."

"I sure have," shouted the old fellow. "If he don't fix the roof soon, I'm gonna move out!"

When a man was hauled into court for non-support of his wife, he explained to the judge, "I was hoping her father would repossess her."

"Is it customary to tip the waiter in this restaurant?" asked the diner, looking at his watch.

"Why, ah, yes sir," replied the slow-moving waiter.

"Then hand me a tip. I've waited three-quarters of an hour for that steak I ordered."

A college student had been pestering his father for a new car. On a visit to the campus, the parent pointed out that most of the cars in the parking lot were quite old.

"But, Dad," the youth protested, "those cars belong to the faculty!"

A small-time football coach with a reputation for optimism came into the locker room to give his team a pre-game pep talk.

"All right, boys" he cried cheerfully, "here we are, unbeaten, untied, and unscored upon—and ready for the first game of the season!"

"What am I to do with this?" grumbled the motorist as the police clerk handed him a receipt for his traffic-fine payment.

"Keep it," the clerk advised. "When you get four of them, you get a bicycle."

Things are pretty well evened up in this world. Other people's troubles are not as bad as yours, but their children are a lot worse.

Genius: a man who shoots at something no one else can see, and hits it.

Two small boys were exploring the zoo together. When they got to the panther they didn't know what it was. As they started around the enclosure they came upon the word, "Dangerous."

"Oh, yeah," explained the older boy, "that is a dang-garoose."

"Yes, ma'am," said the sailor, relating his experience to an old lady. "I was torpedoed in the Atlantic and lived for a week on a tin of sardines."

"Dear me," said the old lady, sympathetically, "how did you keep from falling off?"

The Old Timer

"One thing you get more of for your money these days is bills."

My Neighbors

"I could go for a nice juicy sirlin about now."
