

Mechanic Got Start At TVCC

I got a good basic background in mechanical technology by attending Treasure Valley Community College. It took me three years to earn an associate of science degree because I was working almost full-time while attending classes. I probably would have attended college some place but it was much less expensive to go to school and live at home.

A lot of encouragement was given to me by a high school teacher, the late Sam Tyson of Adrian High School, to go to Treasure Valley. It was good advice and I'll never regret it. My brother Joe also followed that same advice and earned a two year degree in mechanical technology. He is working in Boise now.

My wife Betty also earned an associate degree from TVCC. It was in secretarial science, and she worked at the college for several years. She then worked at Ore-Ida until the corporate office was moved to Boise.
