C of I Forms Speakers Bureau As the result of questionnaires being circulated among College of Idaho administrators and faculty members, a speaker's bureau has been formed to make these speakers available to the public for service clubs, organizations, schools, business firms and government agencies. Mrs. Louise Davis, director of public relations at the College, has categorized subject matters which range from talks on Idaho's natural resources to religions and cultures of the East -- from why Johnny can't cipher to discussions on any twentieth century poet, playwright, or novelist. Slide presentations and performances by members of the music department faculty are also listed, she said. Any group wishing to avail itself of this service, in most cases free of charge, should contact Mrs. Davis at the College at least two weeks in advance of the appointed program presentation time.
