WHAT CAUSES REDNESS AROUND BONES of cooked poultry? Is it harmful? It is definitely not harmful, this color is an indication that the bird is very young, about 8 to 9 weeks old, and that it has been frozen. The redness is due to some of the pigments from the bone marrow that have reached the surrounding tissue.

Work Smarter - Not Harder

POLLUTION, ONE OF THE HOTTEST SUBJECTS of the day, can often be misleading to well meaning people who want to jump on the bandwagon. For instance, glass can be recycled many times. Therefore its use is advocated by some in preference to metal cans. Suppose all fruits and vegetables were packed in glass. There's extra cost involved in retooling, breakage and shipping weight. These costs will be passed on to the consumer. Often this would be the low-income person who buys canned rather than the more expensive fresh or frozen products. We aren't opposed to glass but before going all out against one phase of pollution, we need to get all the facts.

FOR "NOGOOF" LAUNDRY, do sort clothes carefully. This may sound old hat to you, but our County Extension offices get many calls about what to do when a ballpoint pen or lipstick was left in a pocket. If the garment has gone through the dryer, the chances of removing stains are very slim. Another problem is the paper clip, nail or other small sharp object left in a pocket. This can cause mechanical problems with your washer and result in an expensive service call. Watch for that colored sock or other small bright colored item that might accidentally get in with white clothes. When children do the wash, warn them not to put grubbies in the same load with whites.

IF YOUNGSTERS GET GUM ON VINYL UPHOLSTERY, carefully scrape off as much as you can. Then apply kerosene or naphtha. In case you don't have either of these, most hair oils or light sewing machine oil will soften the gum so that it can be removed.
