Students Save Money At TVCC

"Northwest College Cost Comparisons for 1971-72", a brochure published by Equitable Savings and Loan Association, some enlightening figures for tuition and fees appear, according to Dick DeBisschop, Treasure Valley Community College Registrar.
Should a high school graduate from the Treasure Valley Community College district wish to attend Oregon State University next year, his tuition and fees would run $480. At University of Oregon he would pay $507 and at Eastern Oregon $501.
Out-of-state the increase is tremendous for families on moderate budgets. At Boise State College our local student would pay $1290, at Northwest Nazarene $1338, and at College of Idaho $1950. Treasure Valley Community College will charge him only $360 and this includes a rate increase of $10 per quarter approved recently by the college Board of Directors.
Add to these figures the cost of room and board compared to supporting a student at home for two years and it becomes clear that a local family can be well on its way to paying for the second two years of a four-year college education from what it saves at Treasure Valley Community College.

Hourly Earnings Reach New Peaks

New peaks of $4.19 in average hourly earnings and $165.09 in weekly earnings were obtained by Oregon's manufacturing production workers during the month of June. Average hourly earnings advanced eleven cents above the previous month's level. The record $4.19 of wage rate increases, most of which were in the lumber and wood products industry. An additional factor contributing to the high hourly earnings figure was the cool, cloudy weather which delayed the start of canning activity and the hiring of lower pay scale workers.
The length of the workweek declined slightly from 39.6 hours in May to 39.4 in June. In June, 1970 the workweek average was 38.7 hours.
Oregon's construction workers averaged $6.28 an hour during June. Average weekly earnings rose from $215.62 in June, 1970 to the current level of $232.99.

WORK SMARTER - NOT HARDER

The arrival of warm weather suggests that your electric blanket may be ready for cleaning which, in this case, means washing. (Dry cleaning solvents may damage wiring.)
Before washing, protect the plug by tying a cloth around it. Then spot clean with liquid detergent. Use a grease spot remover for oily stains.

Fill the washer with warm or cool water and add mild detergent; then agitate briefly before adding blanket. Let it soak five to fifteen minutes. Agitate at slow speed for only one minute; then spin on normal spin cycle. Set the machine for the rinse cycle with either cool or warm water. Add fabric softener in the rinse.

After the final spin, line dry or tumble dry using two or three towels as buffers. Check directions for washing and drying which come with the blanket. Some manufacturers recommend drying outdoors over two parallel lines.

BIG GAME SEASONS START IN AUGUST

Oregon hunters are alerted to several big game seasons which will get underway in August and extend for various periods of time through the month.

August 1 kicks off the first big game season for 1971 when bear hunters take to the woods to try and track down one of these fine game animals. The season extends through the remainder of the year.

Except for several small closures, bear hunters may test their hunting skills statewide. National forest lands within the Paulina Unit are off limits as are lands within one mile of the Rogue River between Grave Creek and Lobster Creek. Hunters need only the regular hunting license to hunt bear but are limited to taking one bear for the season. Hunting bear with dogs is authorized during legal hunting hours throughout the entire season.

Two other big game seasons get underway in early August but these are limited to hunters holding special tags or permits. One is the antelope season scheduled August 14 through 18 on sixteen antelope herd ranges in southeastern Oregon. A total of 1,440 hunters are authorized to take after these fleet-footed sageland dwellers, known to be the swiftest of all North American big game.

Antelope herds are reported to be in excellent condition with modest increases noted in the herds over the past several years. Some fine trophy bucks will undoubtedly be encountered during the five-day season but

ACTIVITIES

At the regular meeting July 27th the following members completed the regular NRA Qualification courses: Timmie Brown, Larry Wood, and Greg Moffis completed the pro-marksman, shooting ten targets scoring 20 or better; Larry Wood and Timmie Brown won the marksman award by shooting 10 targets scoring 25 or better; and Timmie Brown won the marksman 1st class by firing ten targets scoring 30 or better. David Simantal had previously won the pro-marksman and the marksman awards. These 4-H Gun Club members were all presented their certificates of accomplishment from the National Rifle Association and lapel pins for each course compliments of the Nyssa Coop Supply and the Oregon Trail Grange.

hunters will have to be alert and at their best if they expect to succeed. According to expert hunters, a keen eye, stalking ability, and accurate shooting are prerequisites for a successful antelope hunt. The Game Commission expects about 50 percent of the hunters participating to chalk up a victory.
The other season getting underway is the agricultural deer hunt scheduled to begin August 14 in three areas of southwestern Oregon.

Boise State College Has Idaho Birds On Display

Boise State College now has on exhibit in the Science Building the Idaho bird display recently received from the state capitol building. Transfer of the collection was made through the State Board of Education with the stipulation that they would be on display to the public.

Involved in the exhibit are 100 sealed filled glass cases containing 313 specimens of birds which have been sighted in Idaho. The project was originally supported by the Idaho Fish and Game Department, the Ada County Fish and Game League and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service as a WPA project.

Dr. Donald Obee, Chairman of the Division of Science and Health, said the bird display is the finest collection of its kind in the state, containing specimens of nearly every bird who has been found within Idaho borders. He said the exhibits are in excellent shape because they are within sealed glass cases, and each case has a painted background which places the bird in its natural surroundings.

Rarely seen specimens include a melanistic mutant pheasant, a pair of extremely rare snowy owls, examples of the trumpeter and whistling swan and Crider's hawk. The Brides -- your new bright colored bath towels might be a laundry problem at first. Colors are likely to run.

WORK SMARTER - NOT HARDER

To remove excess dye, wash them separately from other clothes. Use hot water with just a little detergent and repeat the treatment until the rinse water runs clear.

Once rid of this excess dye, the towels can be washed with other colored clothes.

A fabric softener in the final rinse will help keep the towels soft and fluffy. Skip the softener now and then for the best absorbency.

FOR GROWING BOYS, use iron-on tape to hem up trousers, you'll find it's easier to remove and replace tape than to rip out stitching when pants need lengthening.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Sewar celebrated a wedding anniversary Friday when they had dinner in Ontario with Burto Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Pierc and family of Boise and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wild of Nyssa were Friday evening guests in the Dwight Seward home.

Mrs. Ethel Wild is spending a few days this week as a guest of Mrs. Jennie Seward.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Samuel of Meridian and their son Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Samuels were visiting relatives and friends in this community last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nichols and family of Nu Acres were Sunday guests in the Oscar Nichols home.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Wagner, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Miller and sons, and Mr. and Mrs. Phil Boles and family enjoyed a weekend vacation July 17th in McCall.

Mrs. Ed Sells visited Mrs. Luella Breneman of Ontario Tuesday.

Mrs. Ed Sells and Mrs. A.L. Hawkins visited Thursday with Mrs. Ralph Gushaw who had recent major surgery in the Caldwell hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lilly and J.J. returned Friday from Fort Benning, Ga.

Mr. and Mrs. George Griffin were Saturday evening dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Don Derryberry of Payette.

Ullman Calls Strike Unfair

Calling it "grossly unfair" and "economically paralyzing" to areas affected by the strike against the Union Pacific and Southern Railways, Congressman Al Ullman Thursday asked President Nixon and Transportation Secretary John Volpe for administrative action to restore service immediately.

Ullman also called for legislative action from Sen. Warren Magnuson, Chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, and Rep. Harley O. Staggers, Chairman of the Commerce Committee in the House.

"Rail freight service is a national monopoly sanctioned by law", Ullman said. "The national security is involved when any region loses its service."

Ullman said the lack of service in the areas affected by the United Transportation Union's strike was creating an economic disaster for major agriculture producers, the forest industry and primary shippers.

"Vegetables and fruit are going to start rotting in warehouses unless they're shipped soon," the Oregon Congressman said.

He noted that lumber inventories are beginning to be depleted at the prime of the home building season because timber is not being shipped out of Oregon and other northwest states.
