

RECYCLING CONTINUES AT ACCELERATED PACE

Reports from container and packaging industry sources reveal that recycling and reclamation of bottles, cans and paper is continuing throughout the nation at an ever-increasing pace.

According to Richard L. Cheney, president of the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute, redemptions of used glass containers from the public are expected to reach an annual pace of half a billion jars and bottles this summer.

Member companies of the Institute reclaimed 96 million bottles and jars in the first quarter of the current year.

APOLLO 15 STAMP IS NOW AVAILABLE

Lee Dail, Nyssa postmaster, announced that the post office department issued a new stamp, which is sold in pairs to make the Apollo 15 moon rover scene.

This stamp comes in a pair with one stamp showing the Apollo 15 moon rover and the other stamp, the landing module, earth and the sun. This is similar to a previous moon stamp issued after the Apollo 14 moon walk, which was also a double scene.

Advanced advertising on this new stamp was not made available, due to the fact that had the moon landing not been a success the stamp could not have gone on the market.

Cheney said, compared with 60 million in the preceding three months and 42 million in the opening quarter of the program which was launched in July last year.

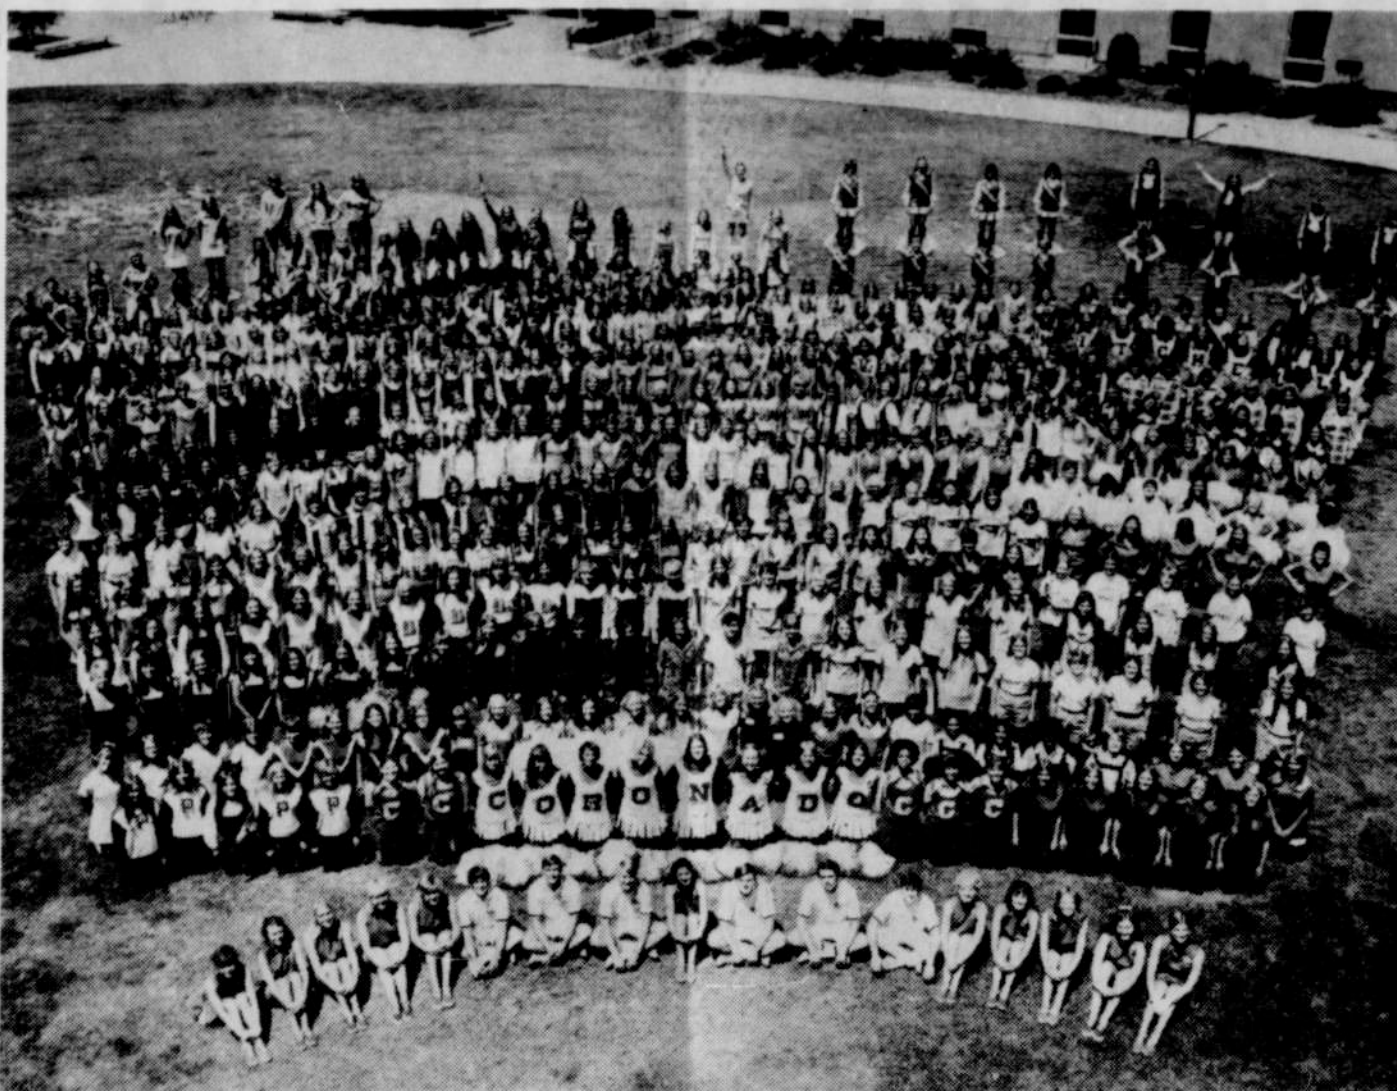

A similar trend is seen in the collection of aluminum cans. Reynolds Metals Co. reclaimed 80 million cans in 1970, and expects to collect 200 million this year through 450 collection centers operating in 23 states.

Kaiser Aluminum's Can-Do recycling program accounted for 24 million cans in 1970 and M.D. Eisele of the company expects that total to more than double in 1971.

Metal can manufacturers recently launched a national program with more than 200 redemption centers operating from coast-to-coast, and M.J. Pigott, vice president, National Can Co., predicted that with active public support two billion cans can be collected annually.

Recycling of paper also continues at an all-time high, according to industry sources. Henry G. Van der Eb, president of Container Corporation of America, speaking at a seminar sponsored by the American Paper Institute, pointed out that U.S. paper and paperboard companies are currently recycling 20% of the 58.5 million tons of paper produced or imported into the U.S. annually.

Nyssa Students Attend Workshop

More than 1000 high school students met at the Utah State University campus July 25-29 at Logan to attend the fifth annual Intermountain Speciality Workshop. The picture above shows the cheerleading group.

From Nyssa High School, cheerleaders attending were (11th row back), the 12th person from the left is Lora Bair. Next to her is Patricia Wahlert, Leann Bair and Pam Stephens. Also attending the workshop to represent the high school drill team were Debbie Adams and Mardi Cole.

The energetic high schoolers traveled from all parts of Utah, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado and Nevada to attend the workshop which is the largest of its kind in the Intermountain West.

West, said Robert Olmstead, camp coordinator from Palo Alto, California.

Olmstead directs numerous speciality workshops in the Western United States during the summer months. The program is affiliated with the National Cheerleaders Association and a total of 150 workshops in 44 states are held during the students vacation.

Students, both male and female, participated in instruction and competition in cheerleading, drill team, flag team, twirling, majorette and songleader divisions. The instructors have been invited from schools and associations throughout the United States.

Cheerleaders from Nyssa High School won awards for outstanding performance in their competition against other schools. Ribbons won were: a white ribbon for outstanding performance, a red ribbon for excellent performance, and a blue ribbon for superior performance.

Drill team members were put into groups to make up and perform in drills and drilling formations. The group Mardi Cole participated in won two superior ratings.

When asked for their opinion of the workshop, the girls from Nyssa stated that it was a real opportunity to attend the workshop as it taught them how to really support their school. They said they would like to take this opportunity to extend a special thanks to all those in the community who helped them raise the funds needed to attend the camp. They also said that this is just one of the many examples of the residents of Nyssa in the way they support the school and its activities.
