

Dairy Group Tells of Princess Coronation

TRINA KAY BLACKBURN

Coronation of the 1972 Oregon Dairy Princess will highlight simultaneous meetings of the Oregon Dairymen Association, Oregon Dairy Council and the Oregon Dairy Wives scheduled January 15-18 at the Portland Sheraton Motor Inn.

The coronation, sponsored by the Oregon Dairy Products Commission, will occur at a noon banquet Monday, Jan. 17.

According to Ray Kozak, executive secretary of the ODP, 12 representatives of county or regional districts will compete for the princess title. They are: Susan Elizabeth Hess, Yamhill County; Vicki Van Dyke, Washington County; Terry Christensen, Tillamook

County; Patti Wall, Polk County; Carla Jean Mikkelsen, Marion County; Trina Kay Blackburn, Malheur County; Ivalene Hill, Linn-Benton County; Terri Lynn Lorang, Lane County; Anna Estelle Brunell, Coos County; Deborah Lee Droz, Clackamas County; Starla Rae Grant, Central Oregon and Ginny Sue Veldsma, Rogue Valley.

Retiring Oregon Dairy Princess is Susan Gourley, of Brownsville, who was crowned in Portland last January.

The meetings mark the second consecutive year that the state's dairy groups have convened concurrently, Kozak noted. He said ODA commit-

MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

Wink, Blink Before Driving in the Dark

Your vision will improve 20,000 to 30,000 times if you wait a few minutes before driving off into the dark, according to the British Association of Optical Practitioners.

The Association claims it takes about 15 minutes for a driver's eyes to become completely accustomed to the dark—but few motorists wait even 15 seconds. They come out of a lighted building, jump into a vehicle and drive off. They are, in fact, partially blind.

For minimum safety, 17-year-old drivers should wait two or three minutes and 60-year-old drivers at least five minutes for dark adaptation, but it still takes 15 minutes to gain your best dark vision.
