LET'S HAVE A PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR

A RESOLUTION FOR ALL AMERICA

It used to be popular to make New Year's Resolutions. We'd make them in all good faith, keep them awhile, and then let them fall by the wayside.

Suppose, for a moment, that all of us decided to make the same resolution for 1972—a resolution based on a philosophy recently expressed by President Nixon when he said: "Hard work is what built America, and it is time in this country that we demonstrate a new appreciation of work and what it means."

If every American pledged himself to work harder at his job, to give it all he's got, to turn out better products, to provide better service—think what it would mean to our economic well-being and general prosperity. Once again we would have pride in our jobs. We would have confidence in the things we buy, in the services we use.

And if the "let's get back to work" philosophy really took hold, the thousands and thousands of able-bodied Americans now on welfare would accept any job that comes along and stop refusing jobs they consider menial.

President Nixon had an answer for those people. He said: "I guess every job my father had was a menial job, but any job that puts food on the table and buys shelter and clothing and education for a man's family is not a menial job. Let's recognize that in America, once and for all. Let us recognize that the only thing demeaning in America is for one man to refuse to work and to let another man who does work pay taxes to keep him on welfare. Any work is preferable to welfare."

So, our resolve for 1972: Let's get back to work!
