Opportunity In Service

As an ex-Navy man who has kept closely in touch with service activities until very recently, I was amazed to discover only last week that there are things I didn't know about the new service pay for enlisted men, and I doubt if many of you are aware of what's going on.

A young Navy recruiter from the Ontario Recruiting Office stopped by for a chat and left a card showing the Navy pay scales for enlisted personnel. I wonder how many young men, and how many parents know that a recruit going to boot camp makes $288 per month? And did you know that after he completes his recruit training and becomes a Seaman Apprentice his pay goes to $320.70 per month?

This scale, of course, applies to the Army and Air Force as well, and to women as well as men in the armed services. It is also just pay, and does not show the other benefits such as food, lodging, clothes, retirement, schooling, travel, and the many other advantages.

Admittedly, right now there seems to be a disenchantment with the armed forces, caused apparently by the long Vietnam war. This should not cloud our vision to the opportunities available to young men (and women) in the service.

If I were the parent of a young man about to graduate from high school, or if I were a high school counselor, or if I were that young graduate, I would be taking a long look at what the Navy (or the other services) has to offer.

Where else can a young man learn a trade and save $250 a month while he is serving his country. Where else can anyone save $250 a month? How in any other way could a student spend four years getting an education, seeing parts of the United States and the World, and save $10,000 to $12,000 in a four-year enlistment?

Our tendency today is to encourage everyone to go to college. Many are unsuited for the task, and many don't know what they want. At the end of a four-year service enlistment a man should have a good trade, money in the bank, an opportunity for a good career and retirement after 16 more years, but most of all a better perspective on what he would like to do than he had after high school graduation.

If he does not want a career in the service, and the largest percentage do not, he then can go out into the world well-equipped in a trade, or he has the opportunity to further his education on the G. I. Bill of Rights. Either way he is the big winner.

Some will say, what if he gets killed? After ten years in Vietnam the total American deaths do not equal any 9-month period on our nation's highways. And in any one year deaths in the service have never come close to a comparable group in civilian life. The poorest argument of all.

The fact is that any young person who is intelligent enough to serve in the Armed Forces, and can meet the physical and character qualifications, has an opportunity never offered before, and unequalled in many other areas today.

Actually, we have many Nyssa young men in the armed forces today doing an outstanding job, and we print news about them whenever it is available. We have the greatest respect and admiration for them and only wish that others in our community who need this opportunity so much would avail themselves of the many benefits in serving their country.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Editor, the Journal:
 I am a woman of 47 years who is divorced. I have had eight children, three who are still at home for me to raise. I live three miles out of town and due to lack of transportation have to spend most of my time at home. I wonder so many times if there are very many people who are in the same circumstances that I am. I get to wondering if there are any people who are either just about shut ins or one parent families. I was thinking that it would be nice to have some sort of club where one parent families could meet each other and talk over some of the problems that arise in this way when trying to raise a family alone. I also wondered if there might be some shut-ins who would like to start some kind of club so that they could meet new friends through the mail.

If there are people who would be interested in any of these things I would like to hear from them. I realize that it is never easy to be alone, but with some one to help who faces the same problems life might seem a little easier. I hope that I will hear from many people about this idea. I would like help to get it started.
