County Fair August 16-19

Meeting in regular session the Malheur County Fair Board furthered plans for the upcoming annual county fair scheduled for August 16 through the 19th. A major change was the approval of the proposal to move the swine exhibits. A barn south of Girvin Hall previously used for sheep exhibits will be concreted and improved for the swine exhibits. A sidewalk is being constructed on the outside of the facility so that fairgoers can view the hog exhibits from the outside. This will permit the exhibitors to care for their animals without interfering with the spectators.

Gordon Capps, Chairman, stated that several equipment dealers in the area have indicated an interest in exhibiting farm equipment at the fair, and expressed the hope that others will also plan on participating.

General clean-up and some landscaping plans were approved by the Board. Plans are also underway to put in some new faucets in the livestock area and control for drainage problems that have existed in the past.

MALHEUR MEMORIAL HOSPITAL, NURSING HOME RECEIVE ACCREDITATION

Ernest A. King, Administrator of Malheur Memorial Hospital, received word Tuesday that the Board of Commissioners of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals has approved the recommendation that the hospital be accredited for an additional two year period. King said that this is the result of the evaluation of the hospital conducted in May.

Everett Heldt, president of the hospital board, said that of additional gratification to the board is the fact that the nursing home had also received accreditation, one of the few nursing homes in Oregon to receive this honor. The hospital has been accredited continuously for many years.

The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, headquartered in Chicago, said in the letter of notification that "the Commission wishes to commend you for maintaining standards deserving of accreditation, and for your constant effort to improve the quality of patient care. Please be assured of our interest and of our willingness to be of all possible help to you."

Accreditation is a special yardstick which measures the success of a hospital in its various activities. The medical and hospital professions have developed a nationwide hospital accreditation program. This program sets up carefully-designated standards for every area of activity in an average hospital.

King said that what is unique about the Commission's accreditation program is that it is entirely voluntary. There's no law or regulation that says a hospital must seek accreditation. It is a decision, voluntarily made by the individual hospital.

Though the scope of the services a hospital offers varies, an accredited hospital must conform to Commission standards in every area in which it functions. In other words, King said, everything the hospital does, it must do well.

The Certificate of Accreditation is the community's protection against hit-or-miss standards in the hospital. It is evidence that medical and hospital people are on guard for you, assuring you that the hospital is well-run, well-organized, well-equipped and well-staffed.
