Processing Main Cost of Meat

Do you know how much of a 1,000 lb. steer actually reaches the retail meat counter?

Only about 437 lbs., points out a new Oregon State University Cooperative Extension Service publication called "Here is Why... Food Prices are Confusing."

This is just one of the facts presented in the special report which is available from the Malheur County Extension Office, reports Helen Conner Extension Home Economist.

Prepared by Stephen C. Marks, OSU Extension Agricultural Economist, the report attempts to help consumers understand some of the basic economic factors which influence the price of meat and other foods.

There has been a great deal of concern expressed recently about increases in food costs," Marks explains. "However people must understand the economic forces influencing prices for reasonable discussion to take place."

Meat prices, for instance, reflect consumer demands for beef and their ability to pay for it as the demand for beef, unlike pork and lamb, is closely related to personal income, the economist points out.

Beef cuts at the retail level are priced in accord with the value of each cut as determined both by supply and demand.

The report, which makes extensive use of charts to illustrate the economics of production and marketing, also outlines where the retail meat dollar goes.

Discussing why food prices are up, Marks notes that "no one in particular" is responsible for the increase which is "basically caused by the interaction of changes in the supply and demand for food."

Demand continues to grow and costs incurred in the marketing system beyond the farm gate are passed along to the consumer. Marketing services play a large part in the total picture.

by-step ways and recipes for plain and cured store-bought or caught meat, poultry, fish, wild game, sausages, and delicacies.

"The Manuel of Brands and Marks"--Wolfenstine--This comprehensive reference work, the first complete and serious treatment of the subject, traces the history of brands from their appearance in Egyptian tombs to the present development of cryo-branding, a revolutionary new technique.

"Christmas Book"--Kathryn Larson--A book full of all the ideas you look for at Christmas time... stuffed with holiday recipes, decorations and gifts you can make yourself.

"Where the Money Went"--Willis E. Stone-- A book dealing with the liberty amendment.

"Salad Book"--Better Homes and Gardens--New salad ideas for every occasion.

"Flags of the U. S. A."--David Eggenberger--An illustrated history of the stars and stripes from its beginnings to the 50th star.

"The Everlasting Man"--G.K.Chesterton--A brilliant and provocative expression of Chesterton's most constructive philosophy.

"Reality Therapy"--William Glasser--This book which is a new approach to psychiatry will offer challenging ideas to psychologists, teachers, social workers, ministers, penologists, and anyone else who is interested in human beings and the way their minds work.

"The New Leviathan"--R. G. Collingwood--A thought-provoking volume in which a philosopher and historian of antiquity turns political scientist and sociologist.

"Power's Human Face"--Arthur T. Hadley--An intimate study in the use and effect of power upon fifteen American presidents from Jefferson to Truman.

"African Genesis"--Robert Ardrey--A personal investigation into the animal origins and nature of man.

"Poems of Ralph Waldo Emerson," J. Donald Adams--An impressive collection of Emerson's poetry gathered under such headings as "Nature," "The Search for Truth," "The Conduct of Life," and "Patriotism and Public Affairs."

"The Religion of the Bible," S. Vernon McCasland--Expert Guidance through the scriptures with accent on the religion they present.

"Who Owns America?" Walter J. Hickey--A fascinating story of the Nixon administration and an inspiring blueprint for saving a ravaged nation.

"The San Francisco Earthquake," Gordon Thomas--A spell-binding, moment-by-moment account of the 1906 earthquake and a dramatic prediction-based on expert opinion--of the next one.

Golf is a game in which a ball 1 1/2 inches in diameter is placed on another ball 8,000 miles in diameter. The object is to hit the small ball, not the large one.

"More than two-thirds of the money spent by consumers for food goes to pay for the services that bring the food from the farm to the retail counter in the form and at the time and place consumers want it," Marks observes.

Copies of the report may be obtained through the Malheur County Extension Office in Ontario.

SALAD FOR LOVERS

"Lettuce alone" has been termed "honeymoon salad." For your second honeymoon, however, you'll probably want to mix it up with your husband, who, you hope, still thinks of you as a cute tomat. Here is a salad recipe about which he won't be as cool as a cucumber.

Beany Egg Salad 6 hard-boiled eggs, coarsely chopped. 1 can (1 pound) pork and beans. 1/4 cup chopped green onions, including tops. Pfeiffer Caesar Dressing (to taste). Salt (to taste). 3-4 slices bacon, cooked and crumbled. 1/4 cup minced parsley. Drain beans. Add remaining ingredients and toss lightly. Serve on chilled salad greens. Makes 6 servings.
