Industry Adopts Guidelines for Children's TV

Guidelines for television advertising to children have been adopted by the Association of National Advertisers to help stimulate high standards of advertising and eliminate practices which might be even remotely considered distasteful, misleading or unduly "high-pressure."

The guidelines are based on the following four principles: Since young children have limited capabilities for discerning the credibility of what they see, they pose a special responsibility for advertisers and broadcasters alike to protect them from their own susceptibilities.

Recognizing that children are limited in their ability to distinguish between fact and fantasy, care should be taken not to stimulate (directly or by implication) unreasonable expectations of performance.

Because of the special nature of the children's audience, extra care should be taken to communicate product information in a truthful and tasteful manner.

Advertising should help develop social standards that are generally regarded as positive and beneficial.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Missing Facts

Two witnesses swore that Harry was the man who had robbed the supermarket, and a jury found him guilty of the crime. Not until after the verdict did Harry's lawyer find out that two other witnesses had told police Harry was definitely not the man.

Was this grounds for overturning the verdict? The prosecutor didn't think so.

This is a general principle of law reinforced by the Canons of Ethics of the American Bar Association. A prosecutor must not suppress evidence capable of establishing the innocence of the accused.

The principle applies not only to guilt itself but also to the degree of guilt. Consider this case: A man was charged with murder. During the trial, the prosecutor withheld testimony that the defendant had been drunk at the time of the slaying.

Admittedly, this testimony could not have cleared the defendant. But at least it could have reduced the crime from first to second degree murder. Reversing the guilty verdict, a higher court said the trial was incomplete without the missing fact of intoxication.

Still, the prosecutor does not have to bring out everything he knows. In an arson trial, the prosecutor kept quiet about a chemical test that had been performed by the FBI.

Challenged later on this omission, he pointed out that the FBI test merely confirmed other tests already known and available to the defense.

Result: the verdict was upheld. The court said the missing information simply was not important enough to make any great difference.

Hearing For Sugarbeet Farm Acreage Allotments

An informal public hearing will be held in Denver, Colo. on the need for establishing proportionate shares (farm acreage allotments) for the 1973 crop of sugarbeets in the Domestic Beet Sugar Area, the U.S. Department of Agriculture announced.

The hearing will begin at 10 a.m. on August 17, 1972, in Room 269, U.S. Post Office Building, 1823 Stout St., Denver.

The Sugar Act provides that the Secretary shall establish proportionate shares for farms in any domestic sugar-producing area if he determines that the production of sugar from a crop will be greater than the quantity needed to enable the area to meet its quota and provide a normal carryover inventory, as estimated by the Secretary for the area for the calendar year during which the larger part of the sugar from such crop normally would be marketed. The Act also provides that the Secretary shall make his determination after due notice and opportunity for a public hearing.

Witnesses who recommend that production be restricted are requested to state their views and recommendations on (a) the level of the 1973 crop National Sugarbeet Acreage Requirement, (b) the methods (formula) for allocating such requirement among States and allotment areas within States, (c) the method of establishing individual farm proportionate shares and (d) the level of set-asides for new producers, appeals and adjustments.

The marketing of sugarbeets within individual proportionate shares (when established) is one of the conditions producers must meet to qualify for Sugar Act payments.

Sugarbeet acreage has not been restricted since the 1966 crop, although restrictions on the 1970 crop were established in October 1969 but rescinded in April 1970 because of lower than anticipated sugar production from the 1969 crop and indications that total plantings would be less than the acreage tentatively allotted for the 1970 crop.

The latest estimate indicates that 1971-crop beet sugar production, when completed, will total about 3,472,000 short tons, raw value. The effective inventory of sugar on January 1, 1972 (made up on hand plus that sugar after that date from the crop of the previous year's designation), was about 2,676,000 tons.

Recent estimates indicate that 1972 crop plantings will be about 1,420,000 acres. Applying the average yield of sugar per acre realized from prior crops to the indicated 1972 plantings suggests sugar production of about 3,300,000 tons. The 1972 plantings suggests sugar production of about 3,300,000 tons. The 1972 calendar year adjusted marketing quota for the area amounts to 3,500,000 tons. The effective inventory on January 1, 1973, may be about 2,476,000 tons, or about 70 percent of that year's probable marketing allotment.

Views and recommendations may be presented orally at the hearing, preferably supported in writing by an original and two copies of the oral statement. Views and recommendations may also be submitted in writing (original and two copies) at the hearing or they may be mailed to the Director, Sugar Division, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, postmarked not later than August 31, 1972.
